for a standout food drive

ountless NALC members, along with thousands of other postal employees and a host of citizen volunteers. exhibited tremendous sacrifice and generosity on Saturday, May 14, during the union's 24th annual "Stamp Out Hunger" Food Drive.

"Volunteering our time and effort to do what we can to help families on our routes struggling with hunger is something that every NALC member can be proud of," NALC President Fredric Rolando said. "At the same time that we raise awareness in such a dramatic and powerful way that the sad reality of hunger in this country continues to be such a widespread problem, we also further strengthen our ties to the communities that we touch at least six days a week."

The official tally for this year's drive was 80.1 million pounds of food collected in more than 10.000 cities and towns in all 50 states, in the District of Columbia and in every U.S. territory where NALC has a presence. This outstanding collection figure brought the drive's 24-year total to more than 1.5 billion pounds.

Rolando highlighted the efforts of the nation's letter carriers, their families and untold numbers of helpers for their assistance in making the drive a success. He also thanked the NALC's national partners in the drive: the U.S. Postal Service, the United Food and Commercial Workers International Union (UFCW), the National Rural Letter Carriers' Association, Valpak Direct Marketing Systems, United Way Worldwide and its local United Way chapters, the AFL-CIO and Valassis.

The president also noted with appreciation the boost to food drive that was provided once again by cartoonist Jeff Keane, who annually creates distinctive "Family Circus" artwork that gets printed on promotional posters, T-shirts and more.

Central Florida Branch 1091 captured the title as the top branch in the nation by collecting 2,233,365 pounds of food. Los Angeles Branch 24 came in second with 1,523,525 pounds, followed by three more high-achievers from Florida: Clearwater Branch 2008 (1,303,559 pounds), West Coast Florida Branch 1477 (1,260,176 pounds), and South Florida Branch 1071 (1.190.110 pounds).

The list of the highest-collecting branches in 11 membership-size categories can be found on pages 18-19.

Similar to past practice, the 2016 calculation of total pounds collected accounts for patrons' monetary contributions to the drive as well as their actual, physical donations of food. In previous years, an outside agency handled the cash-to-pounds calculation. This year, the union surveyed a broad selection of on-the-ground food charities across the country to find out how they realistically leverage their own relationships to stretch donated dollars. The arrived-at figure came to 13.2 pounds per dollar—meaning that the $952,185 in monetary contributions received this year equals 12.568.842 pounds of food, and that amount is included in the national 80.1 million pound total.

A year-round problem

On Saturday, May 14, millions upon millions of bags of non-perishable food first were collected by letter carriers and volunteers, who then sorted and delivered it to local community food banks. pantries and shelters that provide those less fortunate with a lifeline of basic nutrition that should help carry them at least through the summer months.

"Everyone thinks of donating food and money during Thanksgiving and the holiday season," Michael Girsback, a staff member at Santa Monica, CA's Westside Food Bank, told the Daily Press, "However, when the summer months roll around, people are often busy taking care of their kids who are out of school or planning out their next vacation, and making a donation to the food bank is the last thing on their minds.

"That's what makes this letter carriers' food drive so special," Girsback said. "It provides us with thousands of pounds of food just before summer and usually lasts us well into the fall months."

Garden Grove, CA Branch 1100 food drive co-coordinator Tim Thornton added that there is no prize or glory for the letter carriers who pick up the food. "This food drive is voluntary for our carriers," he told the Daily Press. "We get nothing extra for it. We do it out of love for mankind."

"This [drive] helps us to bridge that summertime gap," Pilot Mountain, NC Outreach Center board member Casey Shaw told The Pilot. "With kids out of school, the needs are even higher in the summer and we need to be able to meet those needs. And during the summer, people are outside enjoying their lives and food banks tend to be forgotten."

Boise, ID Branch 331's Candace Lincoln also emphasized on KTVB-TV the food drive's schoolchildren angle. "School's about ready to get out, so we have a lot of children who need extra food and some protein in their diets—and places to go to get some food," she said. "A lot of people this time of year need it, and the pantries definitely need to fill their shelves again."

Kid-friendly food is in fact always needed, St. Cloud, MN Branch 388 Food Drive Coordinator Joyce Bell told The Newsleaders, especially as school years end. "It's just amazing what the need is out there for food, but it's very heartening to see people helping out," Bell said.

Catholic Charities of the Diocese of St. Cloud Communications Coordinator Trina Dietz noted that during the Great Recession of 2008, "We saw a big jump in the number of families using the food shelf."

Sadly, "the numbers have pretty much staved the same in terms of need," Dietz said. But fortunately, the Stamp Out Hunger Food Drive makes it easy to give. "I literally made my donation last year in my pajamas," she said. "How much easi er can you make it for someone to help others?"

Below: South Jersey Br. 908 Bottom: Stamp Out Hunger Food Drive spokesman Edward James Olmos makes the pitch for people to make a donation

Naperville, IL Br. 1151

Donating in pajamas—and, more importantly, the convenience of having food picked up by letter carriers—also was on the mind of Golden Harvest Food Bank's Ashley Siler in Augusta, GA. "We wanted to make it as easy as possible for everyone to donate," she told WJBF-TV. "I walked out this morning in my pajamas and put our food donation by our mailbox so it took 10 seconds, and it was the easiest thing I've ever had to do for a food drive."

In southern states—Florida in particular—summer can present some extra challenges. For example, Harry Chapin Food Bank of Southwest Florida President and CEO Richard LeBer told Fort Myers' News-Press that not only are many of the large crops used by the U.S. Department of Agriculture in food programs out of season in the summertime, employment options often are reduced dramatically in the Sunshine State after the so-called "snowbirds" head north for a few months to escape Florida's sweltering heat and humidity, leaving behind wage earners who often find their work schedules cut or their jobs eliminated altogether.

Positive response

"This year was a really good collection," Harrisburg, PA Branch 500's Greg Andregic told Pottsville, PA's Republican Herald, adding that it goes to show that the "community supports each other."

Capt. Kevin Polito of The Salvation Army in Pottsville told the paper that his pantry—which before the drive had, at best, a couple of weeks' worth of food left to distribute—should be able to make it now through the fall, thanks to the food drive. "My heart is swelled over with gratitude," Polito said. "That's a great response by the community."

And the giving didn't end on May 14. In Clanton, AL, Branch 3457 letter carrier Adam Moyes told The Clanton Advertiser that on the Monday following the drive, he was still picking up bags from customers who had put out food too late in the day on Saturday. "There were certain points where nearly every house on a street had bags out," Moyes said. "Everybody pitched in and did their part. It was one of the best [drives]."

That following Monday also was busy for Hammond, LA Branch 2223's Mark Landry. "Saturday was pickup day, but we're still getting more in today," he told Hammond's The Daily Star on May 16. "This year the community has shown a wonderful outreach."

Up in Minnesota, Hopkins Branch 2942 retiree and food drive coordinator Steve Peterson told the Hutchinson Leader that his branch received a lot of volunteer help

Ohio branch mourns food drive coordinator's death

Longtime Tiffin, OH Branch 413 food drive coordinator Joe Weininger died just days before this year's Letter Carriers' "Stamp Out Hunger" national food drive on Saturday, May 14.

"For the Tiffin area, Joe was the leader and organizer," the Salvation Army's Maj. Becky Stetser told Tiffin's The Advertiser-Tribune, adding that Weininger had helped run the local food drive effort for as long as she could remember.

Branch 413's Kim Bowersox told the newspaper that Weininger was an important part of a team of postal employees who help make sure each year's food drive is a success.

"He goes above and beyond," Bowersox said. "He's the kind of guy who volunteers and helps in the community. His whole route is going to miss him dearly."

Bowersox said that, recently, Weininger had even saved and adopted a dog whose previous owner was unable to care for it. "I've never heard anyone say a bad thing about him," she said.

Dedicating this year's food drive in Tiffin to Weininger "was the least we could do," Bowersox said. She expressed a hope that this year's drive would be successful to honor Weininger.

This year, letter carriers in Tiffin—a northwestern Ohio community of about 17,000 people—collected 8,314 pounds of food, a nearly 20 percent increase over last year's total.

this year from the members the National Rural Letter Carriers' Association, a national sponsor of the food drive. "They go way above and beyond," he said. "The rural carriers don't get enough credit. They don't get paid extra." And just as it is for city letter carriers, he noted, "It's all volunteer."

To the east, Green Bay, WI Branch 618 letter carrier Darrell LeCloux noted to Door County Daily News that "everything stays local, which is very important." LeCloux used the word "overwhelmed" to describe his response to his community's food drive generosity.

That word also found its way into many other reports, such as this one from Foodbank of Southeastern Virginia and the Eastern Shore Chief Executive Officer Ruth Jones Nichols.

"Once again, we are overwhelmed by the support of the community, as well as the Postal Service men and women through this annual effort," she told Hampton, VA's WAVY-TV. "It just shows the power of what we can accomplish collaboratively in the fight against hunger through combined resources and services."

Eastern Idaho Food Bank Branch Manager Rebecca Ristrem told Pocatello's KPVI-TV that her agency and others reach an average of 30,000 people in Eastern Idaho.

"I'm so excited that our mail carriers here participate" in the food drive, Ristrem said, "because they don't have to. It's a wonderful commitment that they have made to help feed hungry tummies across the nation—but it's near and dear to my heart that they are here in Eastern Idaho."

Getting it done

With 24 years of national food drives now under our belts, Worcester, MA Branch 12's Norman LaFlash told the Telegram that letter carriers and volun-

Bags make a difference

In many areas of the country, the success of this year's Letter Carriers' Food Drive often resulted from local distribution of special paper or plastic bags bearing the food drive's logo.

"We'll take any bags that customers have," NALC Director of Community Services Pam Donato said, "but the fact is that, where specially marked bags are distributed, food donations often are doubled."

One example where bags had a dramatic effect on food donations came out of Pittsburgh, where International

UFCW members donate Food Drive bags in Massapequa, NY

Paper employees represented by United Steelworkers worked together this year to manufacture and donate to Pittsburgh Branch 84 letter carriers half a million paper bags.

"Branch 84 went from 290,000 pounds of collected food in 2015 to more than a million pounds this year—all because of bags!" Donato said.

But such bags—paper or plastic—are expensive, so it often can be a struggle for branches to find local sponsors willing to help defray their production. Fortunately, union solidarity could be counted on to solve this problem in a number of locations, with great results.

In several Texas communities, for example, American Postal Workers Union locals kicked in some cash for bag production, as did the Air Line Pilots Association in Dallas. Charleston, WV Branch 531 letter carriers got a similar boost from the United Mine Workers office there, while food drive coordinators in New York and California received some financial support from the local members of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees (IATSE).

The AFL-CIO's state federations in Nebraska and Arkansas sponsored tens of thousands of bags for distribution in key locations in those states, while the federation's national office helped pay for 300,000 bags in Missouri.

And not only did first-time food drive national sponsor UFCW offer the assistance of its 1.7 million members up to, and on, Food Drive Day, that union also backed bag production for distribution in select communities in New York, Ohio, Louisiana, California and Washington state, also with great results.

"Building on our relationships with our brothers and sisters in AFL-CIO's unions is a natural outgrowth of our membership in the larger labor movement," Donato said. "We hope to expand on such relationships in future drives."

teers together have this annual national experience on the second Saturday in May down to a science. "We operate like a well-oiled machine," he told the newspaper, noting that in some cases, a person's letter carrier is one of the few people who are checking up on residents. "We care about our customers," LaFlash said. "We see them every day and we come to know them and look out for them."

Meanwhile, Elmira, NY Branch 21 President Rodney Stanfield told WETM-TV that even before the final collection figures rolled in, he knew local food donations were up compared with last year.

"When I was driving around, checking on the carriers and how they were doing, it was very positive," Stanfield said. Snohomish Co., WA Br. 791

"Each carrier was saving, 'Hey, I'm seeing more food from my customers,' or they're having more houses donate food or the quantity was more from each house."

To the east, Vestal, NY Branch 5151 President Jonny Farnham told WBNG-TV, "Most people put out a whole bag of stuff, but honestly we will take anything we can get."

Speaking to WIFR-TV, Rockford, IL Branch 245 letter carrier Kelli Ramos said that postal customers there often are eager "to hand us their bags, and it gives us a one-on-one opportunity to meet with a community and together help others."

And over in Springfield, IL, the annual food drive brings lightness to the heart of Branch 80 letter carrier Robert Hake. "Kind of like, I can't believe how many people are willing to give something to help others out," he told WRSP-TV. "That makes you feel better yourself and better about what you're doing with your job."

Long Island Merged, NY Branch 6000 President Walter Barton explained to WCBS-AM that the letter carriers in his branch love the extra work on occasions such as the food drive. "We look at it as a labor of love, because they have that connection to the people on their routes," Barton said.

That connection goes too for rural routes—and rural letter carriers—as well as those on city duty. "A lot of times, people in the rural areas are unable to really bring in and donate [food]," local St. Vincent de Paul Society President Gale St. Martin told Gladstone, MI's WLUC-TV.

"This food drive is a 24-year-old tradition, so it is a very important staple in the nation but it's also a very important staple in Jackson," Regional Interfaith Association Communications Director

Chelsea-Catherine Cobb told Jackson. TN's WBBJ-TV.

Mostly pleasant skies

While the country's weather largely was pleasant on Saturday, May 14, there were a few spots where conditions could be seen as less than ideal. In Elkhart, IN, for example, it was cold and rainy—vet Branch 547 letter carrier Mike Cataldo told The Elkhart Truth that 20 percent more food was donated this year compared with last year. "Elkhart County residents gave from their heart," Cataldo said. "They knew they could count on their carrier to come get the food, so they made sure it was ready."

A little farther north, letter carriers and food bank volunteers in Michigan had to deal with rain, snow and even hail as they collected donations. "We got a taste of just about every season Michigan has to offer on Saturday," Feeding America West Michigan CEO Ken Estelle told the Grand Rapids Rapidian, "but that didn't stop the carriers or our volunteers and staff from doing a great job. We could very easily be looking at double what we took in last year."

Along with perseverance, another key to food drive success is organization—something that comes naturally to letter carriers. "In the past, we didn't have this many volunteers, so the food would almost stack to the ceiling as it was dropped off," Elyria, OH Branch 196 President David Lozano told The Chronicle-Telegram. But over the years, he said, the process has become streamlined. "Now, as soon as it hits the floor, the food is categorized and stocked on shelves," he said.

And just in time, too. "Prior to this,

we had a lot of empty space on the shelves," Rebecca Haywood, a Salvation Army caseworker in Elyria, told The Chronicle-Telegram, adding that many adults in her area go hungry, forgoing meals because they only have resources to feed their children. Thanks to this year's food drive, "I think today we collected enough to get us through October," Haywood said.

Looking to the future

New for this year's drive was a pilot project through special food drive partner Amp Your Good, which accepted throughout the month of May online food donations for select hunger organizations in San Francisco, in New York City, and in Greenwich, CT. Amp Your Good's online "Crowd-Feeding" platform makes it easy for postal customers to donate fresh fruits, vegetables and other healthy food, to complement the non-perishables donated on Food Drive Day.

"This seemed to be a pretty good test run for online donations," said NALC Community Service Director Pam Donato. Managing the national food drive is one of the duties assigned to the Minneapolis Branch 9 letter carrier detailed to NALC Headquarters in Washington, DC.

Donato reported that the average amount of food donated online, per donor, was 34 pounds. And because this was an online drive, naturally anyone from anywhere could donate food with just the click of a mouse.

"Those three pilot locations received a special food drive postcard promoting the online option," Donato said. "From what we can tell based on ZIP code information, nearly a third of donations came from people located outside of where the postcard was delivered." She added that NALC is looking at ways of possibly expanding the online drive in 2017.

While next year's food drive might seem as if it's still a long way off, Donato noted that as soon as one drive ends, preparations for another one begins. And the 2017 drive will be extra special, because on Saturday, May 13, NALC will conduct its 25th annual Letter Carriers' "Stamp Out Hunger" Food Drive.

"Our silver anniversary next year will provide our union a golden opportunity to continue our special mission," President Rolando said: "To help raise awareness that too many of the millions of men, women and children we see at least six days a week still—and unacceptably—face hunger every single day."

Many more photos from this year's drive can be found on NALC's Flickr account. Click the Flickr icon at the top of the home page at nalc.org to check them out.
