READY TO JOIN THE FIGHT?

Give it a listen wherever you stream your favorite podcasts

NALC's "Fight Like Hell!" podcast is available on Apple Podcasts, Spotify, Google Podcasts, and wherever you listen to podcasts.

During each episode, NALC President Brian Renfroe and guests discuss vital topics affecting the letter carrier craft and the union at this pivotal moment. Our jobs, our service and the entire Postal Service are on the line. We need everyone's help as we fight like hell against these attacks. Together, we will send a loud, clear message: HELL NO to dismantling the Postal Service.

During Open Season, choose the plan made for you

Brian L. Renfro

NALC's primary goal in everything we do is to support our active and retired members. Whether it's representation on the workroom floor, fighting for the best possible results in collective bargaining, lobbying for letter carriers' interests on Capitol Hill, helping our members when they're injured on the job, providing assistance after a natural disaster with NALC's Disaster Relief Fund, or giving emotional support after a traumatic event with our Emergency Response Team, our members—and their needs—always come first. For decades, the NALC Health Benefit Plan (HBP) has been a steady source of support and protection for our members.

I am writing this article a few weeks before Open Season begins. From Nov. 10 to Dec. 8, NALC members can select their health insurance plan for 2026. Choosing the plan that's best for you and your family can feel overwhelming and confusing, so having all the relevant information is important. For newer letter carriers or those who haven't signed up for the NALC Health Benefit Plan before, I hope you'll consider the Plan this Open Season.

The Plan was founded in 1950, and from the beginning, it has been NALC-owned and operated. HBP is unique and unlike any other option in the market. Since it was created by and for letter carriers, it pays particular attention to the health care needs of NALC members. The Plan is in NALC Constitution. It is not for profit. It is for letter carriers. The sole goal in the Plan's 75-year history has been to provide the best care at the most affordable prices for our members. To this day, we offer high-quality coverage and benefits for letter carriers at the lowest premiums.

Although it doesn't directly affect letter carriers, this year there is one significant change to the Plan. Previously, HBP was an option for any federal employee, not just letter carriers. Because our Plan offers exceptional coverage at a low cost, tens of thousands of employees across the federal government chose our Plan. Due to the separation of the postal and federal sides of the Plan, either premiums for non-postal federal employees were set to increase significantly in 2026 or benefits would be significantly reduced to keep the Plan solvent. These changes would've likely resulted in most non-postal federal employees leaving the Plan.

NALC decided to only offer the Plan to postal employees and their families going forward. Providing the best care for letter carriers has always been the top priority. It is why it exists. Our Plan for our members and other postal employees is healthy, and unaffected by the decision to no longer cover non-postal federal employees.

This Open Season, I hope you will consider signing up for the NALC Health Benefit Plan. If you have questions about the Plan, please visit nalchbp.org or call 888-636-6252. Beginning Nov. 10, to better serve our members during Open Season and beyond, Plan representatives will be available for permanent extended hours, Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Eastern time. For a number of years, we have wanted to extend the customer service hours for our members. We are excited to make that a reality by the time you read this month's magazine.

“Whether you're a new member, young member or a seasoned retiree, having the right health care coverage is important. Joining the Plan can put your mind at ease, knowing you chose a letter carrier-owned and operated plan with your unique interests in mind.”

I also urge you to reach out to your branch's health benefit representative. These letter carriers have information on the Plan and are there to help you navigate Open Season. If you don't know your branch's health benefit representative, contact your branch or national business agent's office.

Whether you're a new member, young member or a seasoned retiree, having the right health care coverage is important. Joining the Plan can put your mind at ease, knowing you chose a letter carrier-owned and operated plan with your unique interests in mind. As with everything in our union, we're stronger together. When more letter carriers sign up for the Plan, it can continue to grow and adapt to best serve our members at the lowest possible cost.

We honor the service of all veterans in our ranks and recognize NALC Veterans Group members

Military, message, media

Philip Dine

We all know the value of having so many military veterans in our ranks, a value reflected in the contributions they make to our craft and our union, the unique experiences and perspectives they offer, and the richness they add to the fabric of the NALC at all levels.

We see it, more precisely, in the leadership they provide to our union. In their daily sense of mission on the route and their determination to overcome any obstacles that jeopardize that mission. In their situational awareness that manifests itself in dangerous situations and that so often is reflected in the annual Heroes ceremonies.

Today, I'd like to focus on another benefit—less obvious, perhaps, but no less significant—of the presence of letter carriers who are wearing their second uniform in service to our country: How it enhances our ability to communicate with the press, the public and the politicians. This merits some explanation, which I'll get to shortly, but first let's note that NALC's communications efforts are vital to everything our union aims to do, given the nature of the letter carrier job and our resulting reliance on elected officials and, by extension, their constituents.

Whether we're aiming to support—or stop—bills in Congress, to influence the national conversation or inform USPS management, or to get public officials/law enforcement to act decisively to counter the criminal targeting of letter carriers, persuasive messaging is paramount. Indeed, communicating effectively boosts NALC's efforts to achieve everything else we seek to accomplish, while subpar messaging impedes those efforts.

So, what does this have to do with our veterans? A great deal. Having so many co-workers who are wearing their second uniform in service to our nation helps in a myriad of ways; two key ones among them.

First, it boosts our credibility with, and access to, media outlets, particularly those that lean conservative. Many a time I've reached out to the latter, only to quickly hear, in a dismissive tone, "Wait, you're with a union, right?" (As in, can they please get off the phone ASAP?)

My typical reply: "Yes, we are a union. Do you have 30 seconds?"

Granted somewhat grudging permission, I continue, "Here are a few things you might not know about the Postal Service and about letter carriers: The Postal Service is based in the Constitution, it relies on earned revenue rather than taxpayer funding, it's critical to rural areas, and more than 1 in 5 letter carriers are military veterans."

At that point, the response is usually along the lines of, "Can you tell me more?" Or, "So what did you want to discuss?"

Conversely, when a reporter working on a postal story calls, though by definition they're already interested, that interest only intensifies when they're told that USPS is the largest civilian employer of military vets. What their mind goes to is the prospect that their editor or producer will be impressed that they know this, will likely give the story better play if this additional element can be worked in, and further that the report might resonate a tad more with their audience.

Then, if we can provide the journalist with a letter carrier who fits the bill, it's off to the races.

Second, the veteran angle can prove useful when brought to bear in the voice of a letter carrier speaking at an "Enough is enough" rally or another gathering. It can be seamlessly worked into a speech along the lines of, "I've seen combat overseas, so danger isn't foreign to me, but the last thing I—or my fellow carriers—should be confronted with while delivering mail in our community is a gun pointed at us."

That not only drives home the crime/safety issue, it also offers the reporter and his viewers/readers/listeners an intriguing perspective. And, during the inevitable post-rally one-on-one interviews, journalists hoping to include an element that their competitors might not report on will likely pursue this issue in greater depth with the carrier.

If you'd like to work such an angle into your speech or interview, feel free to reach out and we can discuss ways to do so.

In closing, a salute to our members who have served so we can remain free. On a personal level, I had the opportunity for two decades to report on our soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines here and abroad, from the Pentagon to the battlefield. For the past 15 years, I've had the privilege of working with you within NALC as you once again serve our nation—and my respect and admiration for your courage and sacrifice have only increased.

News from Washington

Government shutdown persists

As this issue was going to press, the federal government shutdown that started on Oct. 1 is in its third week, with no end in sight. With Congress unable to perform its most basic function—funding the government—little to no legislative business is being accomplished. Unfortunately, millions of federal employees remain furloughed or working without pay.

At press time, the Senate continued voting daily on a bill to reopen the government that had yet to pass. Additionally, the chamber had failed to advance measures to pay certain furloughed employees during the shutdown. Paying certain federal employees while others remain furloughed or continue working without pay could extend the government shutdown since Congress would likely be less incentivized to negotiate if fewer federal employees were affected. In September, the House passed a clean continuing resolution to fund the government through Nov. 21, but since then, legislative work has stalled. The ongoing standstill stems from Democratic lawmakers' insistence on extending Affordable Care Act subsidies.

The lengthy shutdown has paused other legislative business and demonstrates Congress's inability to function and govern. While the Postal Service is not affected by the shutdown and letter carriers are performing their duties with pay, our legislative agenda is affected by this prolonged pause in Congress's work.

While hundreds of thousands of federal employees have been furloughed and hundreds of thousands of others have continued working without pay, the administration so far has fired more than 4,100 employees across the federal government. White House Budget Director Russell Vought said he expects the total number of federal workers fired during the shutdown to exceed 10,000. Vought also warned that certain government programs could be cut as well.

The American Federation of Government Employees (AFGE) and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) filed a lawsuit challenging the legality of the firings. The judge issued a temporary restraining order directing the administration to pause reductions in force affecting certain union members. While the legality of these actions continues to play out in court, the administration's goals are clear and set a dangerous precedent for federal and postal employees and their unions. In solidarity with our fellow federal employees, NALC and more than 15 other federal unions and organizations co-signed a letter to Congress from the Federal-Postal Coalition calling for reversing all reductions in force.

While Congress's failure to fund the government limits immediate opportunities for NALC's legislative priorities, congressional offices remain open, and members of Congress can still co-sponsor bills. Despite Congress being at a standstill, NALC will continue working to build support for bills. Our priority legislation includes:

- Protect Our Letter Carriers Act (H.R. 1065/S. 463)—This bipartisan bill would deter the increasing crimes and assaults committed against letter carriers by modernizing and replacing lock-and-key infrastructure, increasing prosecution rates, and standardizing sentencing guidelines. At press time, H.R. 1065 had 149 co-sponsors and S. 463 had nine.
- Federal Retirement Fairness Act (H.R. 1522)—This bipartisan bill would allow federal employees, including letter carriers, who started their federal service in non-career positions (city carrier assistants, transitional employees or casuals) to buy back that time and make it creditable toward their retirement. At press time, H.R. 1522 had 113 co-sponsors.
- Anti-privatization resolution (H.Res. 70/S.Res. 147)—This bipartisan resolution expresses the sense of Congress that the Postal Service should remain a public, independent institution, not subject to privatization. As this magazine was going to print, H.Res. 70 had 225 co-sponsors and S.Res. 147 had seven co-sponsors.

Letter carriers can visit nalc.org/action to ask your members of Congress to co-sponsor these priorities. PR

Penalty overtime exclusion set

As referenced in Article 8, Sections 4 and 5 of the USPS-NALC National Agreement, the December period during which penalty overtime regulations are not applicable consists of four consecutive service weeks. This year, the December period begins Pay Period 26-2025, Week 1 (Nov. 29, 2025) and ends Pay Period 01-2026, Week 2 (Dec. 26, 2025).

What is Open Season for benefits?

Open Season for benefits is here again. Letter carriers who are new to the Postal Service might not know exactly what Open Season means and what the options are. Article 21 of the 2023-2025 National Agreement codifies the Postal Service's obligations regarding the benefit plans available to city carriers. Many of these benefit plans can be initiated or modified during Open Season. This article will briefly discuss Open Season, the benefits available, and the options that all city carriers should consider.

Each year, Open Season runs from the Monday of the second full workweek in November through the Monday of the second full workweek in December. This year's Open Season is from Nov. 10 through Dec. 8. Open Season is the designated time of year when all USPS employees are given an opportunity to enroll, update their benefit elections, or change their existing coverage levels. They also can make certain changes to their health plan enrollment throughout the year if they have a qualifying life event (QLE).

Now is the time for letter carriers to review all the benefit options available to them and make changes that best suit them and their family. Don't forget, health benefits, while very important, are not the only benefits changeable during Open Season. In addition to health benefits, Open Season offers city carriers an opportunity to enroll in other benefit programs, which could include dental, vision, flexible spending accounts and commuter benefits.

Let's start with health benefit options. Health benefit options vary depending on whether you are a city carrier assistant (CCA) or a career employee. All career city carriers, including part-time flexible (PTF) carriers, are eligible to enroll in the Postal Service Health Benefits (PSHB) Program regardless of length of service.

Postal Service Health Benefits Program

The PSHB is a separate program within the Federal Employees Health Benefits (FEHB) Program, administered by the Office of Personnel Management (OPM). PSHB provides health benefit plans to eligible Postal Service employees, Postal Service annuitants and their eligible family members. The PSHB program has many plans to choose from, including the NALC Health Benefit Plan (HBP).

The NALC HBP is a comprehensive plan that has provided letter carriers and their families with first-rate health insurance since 1950. The Plan is owned and operated by letter carriers and pays particular attention to their health needs. Since 1950, NALC has made it our mission to deliver comprehensive benefits at a competitive cost, and 75 years later, this goal has not changed. The plan is not for profit; so, the focus is on the members, not CEO salaries. With more than seven decades of providing service to NALC members and their families, the Plan is strong, and we hope you will make the decision to join the plan that delivers.

Whichever plan letter carriers choose, the premiums are split between the carrier and the Postal Service. Article 21 of the National Agreement sets the percentage of the premiums that will be paid by each. USPS pays 72 percent of the weighted biweekly premiums as determined by OPM. Be sure to visit the LiteBlue website at liteblue.usps.gov and choose the “My HR” tab, then “Pay and Benefits” for more information, resources and tools. More information is available at opm.gov/healthcare-insurance/pshb, including the list of QLEs for the PSHB Program in the enrollment section.

A CCA’s options regarding health insurance are found in Appendix B, Section 3. OTHER PROVISIONS, F. Article 21 – Health Insurance, of the 2023-2026 USPS/NALC National Agreement. The options and the amount USPS will contribute toward a CCA’s premium under this provision differ depending on the length of service as a CCA. These options can be quite confusing; therefore, this section will explain these options in the simplest possible terms:

Option 1—Appendix B provides that CCAs reappointed to another 360-day term after serving an initial 360-day term may enroll in any available plan in the Postal Service Health Benefits Program, but they must pay the total cost of the plan, as there is no Postal Service contribution toward the premium. During Open Season, CCAs may enroll in a PSHB plan, provided they have reached the 360-day requirement.

Option 2—The Postal Service will make a biweekly contribution equal to 75 percent of the total premium for any CCA employee who wishes to participate in the USPS Health Benefits (HB) Plan for self, self plus one, or self and family coverage, regardless of years of employment.

USPS Health Benefits (HB) Plan

The USPS HB Plan is administered by CareFirst BlueCross BlueShield and is available to all CCAs regardless of length of service. CCAs who did not elect to take this coverage during either their first 60 days of employment, or 60 days after returning from a five-day break in service, can now do so during Open Season. Other than Open Season, CCAs can only enroll or increase their coverage level from self only to self plus one or self and family; or self plus one to self and family when certain QLEs occur, as described in Handbook EL-520, Guide to USPS Health Benefits Plan. For USPS HB Plan information regarding benefits, participating providers, and other resources, go to carefirst.com/usps.

What about dental and vision coverage? All city carriers are eligible to participate in the Federal Employees Dental and Vision Insurance Program (FEDVIP), and Open Season gives letter carriers the opportunity to enroll if they haven’t already, or to make changes to their coverage for 2026.

Federal Employees Dental and Vision Insurance Program (FEDVIP)

FEDVIP is a supplemental dental and vision insurance program for eligible federal employees and annuitants. The FEDVIP program is administered by BENEFEDS, which includes enrollment, plan changes and premium payment processes. FEDVIP offers self only, self plus one, and self and family plan options. Letter carriers can enroll in FEDVIP every year during Open Season. To compare dental and vision plans, learn more and enroll, go to benefeds.gov.

Is now the time to take advantage of a Flexible Spending Account (FSA)? An FSA is a tax-advantaged account that allows employees to set aside pre-tax dollars from their paycheck to pay for eligible expenses, such as medical and dental expenses, and dependent care.

NALC Health Benefit Plan

Flexible Spending Account (FSA) Program

The Postal Service offers three types of FSA accounts through Inspira Financial; a health care flexible spending account (HCFSA), a limited-purpose flexible spending account (LPFSA), and a dependent care flexible spending account (DCFSA). Letter carriers can fund their Inspira FSA by simply setting the total election amount each year during Open Season. The contribution amount chosen is deducted evenly out of each paycheck throughout the year.

Inspira HCFSA lets letter carriers put pre-tax money aside for eligible health care expenses such as contact lenses, allergy and pain relief medications, hearing aids and prescription eyeglasses. Eligible health care expenses also include copays, coinsurance, deductibles, dental and vision expenses, prescriptions, and over-the-counter health care supplies from select retailers.

An LPFSA is like an HCFSA, but is specifically for dental and vision expenses. Letter carriers can use the LPFSA for things like prescription eyeglasses, contacts, dental visits and orthodontia.

DCFSA also lets letter carriers use pre-tax money for eligible expenses to care for loved ones, such as day care or in-home care. When an eligible family member needs care, but letter carriers still have to work, a dependent care account is a smart and convenient way to save, pay and budget for dependent care-related expenses. Letter carriers can use the funds for their dependent(s) age 12 or younger, a spouse, or an adult dependent incapable of self-care.

Even though it is not restricted to Open Season, now is a good time to remind career city carriers about the

- Musculoskeletal MSK (Virtual Physical Therapy)

Commuter Benefits Program, which allows them to pay for qualified commuting costs using pre-tax money.

Commuter Benefits Program

The Commuter Benefits Program allows career employees to set aside as much as $325 each month on a pre-tax basis for commuting costs deducted from their paycheck. Qualified expenses include transit costs and parking fees. Employees who use micromobility modes of transportation—small, lightweight electric vehicles such as e-scooters, e-bikes and e-mopeds—can use post-tax dollars to save with partner discounts. Any career Postal Service employee is eligible for this benefit. There is no fee to join or cancel. There is no open enrollment period; employees can enroll or make changes at any time throughout the year. For more information, go to liteblue.usps.gov and choose the “My HR” tab, “Pay and Benefits,” then “Commuter Program.”

Whether letter carriers are starting their career or have a few years of experience carrying the mail, they should take a few minutes this Open Season, to review their current benefit programs and, if necessary, make some changes. This Open Season offers the chance to choose the best options for letter carriers and their family. Use the information here to make the most out of the available benefits. PR

Review your investments in the Thrift Savings Plan

While many employee benefits have an open season, there's no open season for enrollment in the Thrift Savings Plan (TSP). That means that anytime is the right time to take stock of your finances. This is true whether you've just converted to career or are a longtime carrier. As a letter carrier, the TSP can play a valuable role in your retirement strategy.

The TSP is an essential component of the Federal Employees Retirement System (FERS), the retirement program that covers most USPS employees. Like many 401(k) savings plans offered by private-sector employers, the TSP allows federal employees to save pre-tax dollars each month in an investment account—giving letter carriers who participate the chance to save for retirement quickly and easily. TSP participants choose how the money in their account is invested.

The Postal Service automatically enrolls new career carriers in TSP. City carrier assistants (CCAs) converted to career, or career letter carriers hired after July 31, 2010, have been automatically enrolled. Five percent of the base pay of new enrollees and of those hired after Sept. 30, 2020, is automatically deducted and deposited in a TSP account each pay period, though participants may choose to eliminate, increase or decrease their level of contributions. Letter carriers hired between Aug. 1, 2010, and Sept. 30, 2020, were automatically enrolled at 3 percent of their base pay. Letter carriers hired before Aug. 1, 2010, were enrolled without automatic employee deductions and must set those up themselves.

The Postal Service deposits matching contributions up to 4 percent of basic pay, as well as automatic agency contributions equal to 1 percent of basic pay, for a total of up to 5 percent. All career carriers receive USPS's automatic 1 percent contribution. USPS will then match a portion of the first 5 percent of an employee's contributions. The first 3 percent is matched dollar for dollar; the next 2 percent is matched with 50 cents per dollar, for a maximum matching contribution of 4 percent. Letter carriers should take note of their date of hire and ensure that they are enrolled in employee deductions if they wish to receive matching contributions by USPS beyond the automatic 1 percent.

Participating employees can also make unmatched contributions (above the 5 percent level), but the IRS annual limit for total contributions to the TSP and other such retirement savings plans is $23,500 in 2025. Participants might be eligible to make additional "catch-up" contributions to boost their savings beginning the year they turn 50. These catch-up contributions are not matched by USPS and are limited to $7,500 in 2025. New for 2025, employees aged 60 to 63 can make a "super catch-up" contribution of up to $11,250, for a total maximum of $34,750.

For CCAs who have not yet converted to career status, NALC's Mutual Benefit Association offers a CCA Retirement Savings Plan, where traditional IRA funds can be rolled into the TSP once the CCA becomes a career letter carrier.

Carriers can use LiteBlue to enroll in the TSP or to make changes to their deductions or investments at any time of the year. The benefits of easy, tax-deferred savings through TSP are amplified by the Postal Service's matching contributions to your account.

Carriers covered by the Civil Service Retirement System also can join TSP, but they do not receive matching contributions from USPS. Nevertheless, like their FERS counterparts, they can keep more of what they save because of the tax savings and the TSP's minimal administrative costs. Indeed, such costs are much lower than those of similar private plans. In 2024, the TSP charged participants a net administrative expense of no more than 79 cents per $1,000 invested for each investment fund, or 0.079 percent. That is much lower than the 0.25 to 1 percent that many private financial advisors typically charge.

TSP accounts do not expire when letter carriers separate from federal service. Letter carriers can still change their investment mix while their account continues to accumulate earnings; they can even transfer IRAs or eligible employer plans such as 401(k)s into a TSP account.

The TSP has a mobile app, which allows letter carriers to monitor their TSP accounts and complete transactions from anywhere. Users can check their account balance, track fund performance, make transaction requests, submit documents, manage payment information, scan checks and more.

TSP also has a recordkeeping system available on its website that clearly displays letter carriers' investments, which makes it easy for them to find and use account management tools.

In addition to investing in TSP funds, letter carriers who meet eligibility requirements have the option to invest some of their TSP savings in mutual funds. The mutual fund option, referred to as the "mutual fund window" by the TSP, is designed for TSP participants who are interested in greater investment flexibility. However, there are fees for these transactions.

Letter carriers have several flexible withdrawal options when they leave federal service, such as multiple single withdrawals and the ability to change the frequency and the amount of installment payments at any time during the year. Explore these options and more in the booklet Withdrawing from Your TSP Account for Separated and Beneficiary Participants, available at tsp.gov.

Visit tsp.gov or call TSP-YOU-FRST (877-968-3778) to check out planning tools and calculators designed to assist with retirement decisions. PR

Still time to contribute through CFC

For federal employees, 2025 has been a worrying year. They have been stripped of their rights, laid off, and put in limbo during a government shutdown. But for many, it has made them want to give back where they can. And any federal employee can make a difference through the Combined Federal Campaign (CFC), the world's largest annual workplace giving program. This year's campaign began on Oct. 1 and ends on Dec. 31. Federal and postal employees participate in the CFC by choosing from a list of charities to support through automatic deductions from their paychecks.

"Letter carriers are known for taking care of our communities," NALC President Brian L. Renfroe said. "The CFC is a convenient way for letter carriers to support their favorite charities and help those in need."

All active letter carriers can participate in the CFC through payroll deduction. Participants can use payroll deduction, credit or debit cards, or bank accounts to make recurring donations. They also can make a one-time donation using any of these methods except payroll deduction. Participants can even volunteer for the charity and count the value of the hours as money raised.

The easiest way to sign up is through the CFC Donor Pledging System at cfcgiving.opm.gov or through the CFC Giving smartphone app, available on the App Store and Google Play. Retired letter carriers may donate through a deduction from their annuity or by making a one-time or recurring donation using a credit or debit card. They also can do so through an automatic deduction from their bank account using the CFC Donor Pledging System.

To donate online, register an account at givecfc.org.

Letter carriers can choose to support any of the 2,000-plus nonprofit charitable organizations through CFC. By looking at the list and choosing a charity's CFC number, you can donate directly to one or more charities. You can search for charities at cfcgiving.opm.gov/offerings.

NALC's official charity since 1952 is the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA). MDA is the world's leading nonprofit health organization sponsoring research into the causes of, and effective treatments for, neuromuscular diseases. MDA research grants support research projects worldwide, as well as camps and activities for children who have any of these diseases. MDA's CFC number is 10561.

Jéan P. Johnson
performs as Jéan P at a show.

THE RAPPING MAILMAN

Jéan P. Johnson, a Canton, OH Branch 238 member, is known by many names. His family calls him “Jéan P;” his co-workers call him “JJ;” on stage he’s “Jéan P the MC” or just “Jéan P,” but the Canton community knows him by the title “the rapping mailman.”

Jéan P was born, raised and has spent most of his 35 years in Canton, a 69,000-person city in northeast Ohio. During that time, he has become a contributor to his community—carrying the mail since 2015, performing, creating content about Canton and working with community organizations.

His retired branch president, Gloria Miller, said, “His customers appreciate his caring and kindness along with the message he delivers to the youth on his route and the city of Canton. He has become a positive catalyst for the community with messaging that [conveys] ‘You get what you put into life.’”

But his music career had to start somewhere. Beginning at 18, he studied creative writing at Ohio University and his time there ended up being a catalyst for his music career. Every opportunity he got, he would perform at shows, open mics and campus events. He even hosted an open mic night himself. He said he would just try anything to get his “name out there” to play more gigs and gain popularity.

Jéan P doesn’t just wordsmith his lyrics. “I love writing, too,” he said. “I’ve always wanted to be a writer before a rapper or MC, you know. I always wanted to do that.”

He has been writing outside of his music both before getting into rapping and since. In his free time, he explores a variety of creative concepts in both fiction and nonfiction.

He says he always treats his albums “as books” in the way he continues one theme throughout each of his albums. He has a goal to write a book next year.

Dealing with the deaths of his father at 6 and mother at 15, he used writing and music to get through the grief, saying, “Hip-hop has always been kind of like a parent for me. Even in my younger days, in high school, I was always writing rhymes. I was always honing my skills as a hip-hop artist and things like that. It was helping me cope with losing my parents.”

Although Jéan P didn’t start performing on his own until college, growing up with a choir director as a mother, he “had no choice but to be in the choir,” he said. “Some Sundays I would just watch and just pay attention to how she controlled the choir with her hands. You know, that’s why I use my hands a lot when I rap, you know, because they pay attention. That keeps people’s engagement.”

When he’s performing, crowd engagement is important to him, along with people pronouncing his name correctly. It’s pronounced “Zhawn,” similar to “John.” He came up with a call and response, which he uses in performances. He will shout, “Go Jéan P, go Jéan P, go Jéan P, go!” then the crowd repeats it back to him. The funny thing about this, he says, is that when fans see him in public they will sometimes yell “Go Jéan P, go Jéan P, go Jéan P, go!” at him in the supermarket.

In regard to his sound, he said, “Some people say I have, like, a very old-school retro style with my music.” Some of his favorite artists are A Tribe Called Quest, Jay-Z, KRS-One and Lupe Fiasco, who were popular from the 1980s to the 2000s.

“Any hip-hop that was before me, I always study it and apply it to what I do now,” he said.

He isn’t under a record label but rather records and produces himself with some help. The mixes are created with the use of a combination of many different beats, background music and sound bites, which he gets from friends. Often, he even co-produces his songs with friends, too.

“Sometimes the music kind of speaks to me in a way,” Johnson said. “It tells me what I should say and what I should talk about.”

Although he thinks of most of his songs as part of a concept, or a “book,” as he likes to say, sometimes the audio he receives is what inspires his songs.

During his 17 years of music, Jéan P has released 24 projects, including 12 mixtapes, 10 albums and two EPs, which are similar to albums but have only up to eight tracks and a total play time of less than 30 minutes.

His newest album, “So I Was Thinking,” came out Oct. 10. He created the album after struggling with multiple sclerosis, which caused difficulties in his speech and prompted him to take a year off from music.

“I was really depressed about it,” he said. “I’m like, ‘Man, I rap. This is what I do.’ ... I had to teach myself how to talk again and not let this stop me.”

His album explores his everyday experiences, his struggle with his illness and represents his growth and maturity as

Johnson with one of his favorite customers on his route

“grown man Jéan” at 35 years of age, he said. The album was named to go with the titles of his previous works like his podcast and another album that was released in 2022, “The Way Eye See It.”

“It’s an album that I think people who appreciate good music and hip-hop will appreciate,” the letter carrier said.

On July 14, Jéan P released “A Rhyme and a Dream: The Jéan P the MC Story,” a documentary that he produced about his life and career. It took about two years to complete and details everything from his early life to his recent community contributions and features interviews with his family, friends and community members.

In February 2023, local recognition led him to reach one of his dreams. Jéan P performed his songs with four members of the Canton Symphony Orchestra as a part of the CSO’s Divergent Sounds series. The sounds of a cello, violin, trumpet and harp accompanied his rapping.

“I always wanted to do a show with a symphony, and it was the first of its kind for me,” he said. “So, I was really excited to do that, you know, bring my world to theirs and collab. I’ve always seen, like, my favorite artists take that path of working with a symphony or a full orchestra and I had the opportunity to do so. I was really happy about that, and I would love to do it again.”

When he is not performing, Jéan P enjoys engaging in his community and creating content. In his spare time, he hosts a podcast called “Say What You Mean,” where he has discussions with musicians and prominent members of the Canton-area community for about 45 minutes to an hour. He has recorded 186 episodes and counting.

His podcast led him to work with EN-RICH-MENT Arts Education Center, where he taught a month-long afterschool class for high school students on how to create a podcast.

“Being able to teach kids what I do and show them what I do as a hip-hop artist and a podcast host was pretty cool,” he said. “Great experience.”

He is glad he was able to build a relationship with his students and get his name out to a new generation of people in Canton. “Some of the kids I deliver mail to, they see me like, ‘Hey, Jéan P. What’s up?’ That’s always cool,” he said. PR

Proud to Serve

Proud to Serve is a semi-regular compilation of heroic stories about letter carriers in their communities. If you know about a hero in your branch, contact us as soon as possible at 202-662-2420 or at postalrecord@nalc.org. We'll follow up with you to obtain news clippings, photos or other information.

Honoring heroic carriers

Heroism, like the mail, comes in many packages—think of police officers or firefighters. But for some citizens in need of assistance, their heroes come in the form of their letter carriers.

Letter carriers are members of nearly every community in this nation and know when something is wrong. Spotting fires and injuries, they often are the first to respond. The following stories document their heroism. For them, delivering for America is all in a day's work.

Joshua Hall

Carrier stops to help car crash passengers

Joshua Hall, a Mansfield, OH Branch 118 letter carrier, was driving to work on the morning of Sunday, Aug. 24, in Crestline, when he came across a two-vehicle crash that had happened only one or two minutes earlier.

A truck had pulled out in front of a

Camaro, and as the driver did so, the Camaro swerved out of the way and hit a guardrail. The truck driver had a similar reaction, swerving and hitting a guardrail as well.

Coincidentally, Hall's parents were on their way to church, saw the crash and called 911.

The one-year letter carrier put his hazard lights on and parked his truck vertically, blocking the two lanes of traffic from the crash.

Before becoming a letter carrier, Hall's entire career had been in emergency response. Beginning in high school, Hall was a 911 dispatcher and after that he became a police officer.

Hall approached the driver of the Camaro, who was attempting to get an unconscious female in the passenger seat out of the car. In the back of the car was a child, conscious and crying, whom Hall worked to free first. He used his sleeves to cover his hands so they wouldn't be cut by the broken glass, and he lifted the child out of the top of the convertible. Hall brought the child to his postal van, and Hall's parents stayed with the child.

He then returned to help the woman, who was having a seizure and whose leg was wedged beneath the console. Hall reclined her seat all the way back, rolling her onto her left side. When he noticed that the car was beginning to emit smoke, he knew that he needed to get her out. Breaking the seat, Hall freed the woman, turned off the engine to stop the smoking, pulled her out through the driver's side, then carried her to his van as he heard sirens approaching.

Hall wanted to help the driver and passenger of the other vehicle exit the truck, but the airbags had deployed and the letter carrier was worried about disrupting the airbags, as the occupants hadn't sustained any injuries. Hall recalled that during his time as an emergency responder he "had a couple accidents ... where I was stupid enough to try to pop an airbag and get somebody out, and it just made a huge mess. It was not worth it."

But Hall stayed with him. "The guy in the truck ... just kept asking me if they were OK," he said.

Once the emergency responders arrived, Hall said he helped them "rip the door off the truck to get [the truck driver] out without busting any airbags."

Although the truck driver was unscathed, the family and Hall himself sustained injuries. The Camaro driver had a large forehead wound that needed stitches. The woman had a gash on her forehead and a fractured skull, and Hall said that the last he had heard she was still in the ICU. The child tore his rotator cuff and sustained a fracture to his skull. Hall has not been able to contact the family since the incident.

Hall describes himself as being "wired to help people" due to his experiences and says he is "kind of used to it ... I was on my toes like that all the time."

He continued: "When people need help, you give out your hand because you never know if you'll be that person that needs help."

Letter carrier alerts 911 and neighbor about elderly woman who fell

Cecil Cloyed, a 11-year letter carrier in Kerrville, TX, has one elderly customer who regularly picks up her mail. On Thursday, Feb. 27, the Branch 3028 carrier noticed that his elderly customer hadn't collected her mail from Monday, the last time she received any.

He didn't

think much of it until he put the mail in the box and was about to continue to the next house—but heard a faint call coming from inside the house. Cloyed tried to open her door, but it was locked. So, he shouted, “I’m going to get you some help,” and called 911.

While he was waiting for emergency responders to arrive, he went across the street to ask the neighbor if she had a key. She didn’t, but she was able to call the woman’s daughter, who arrived on the scene around the same time as an ambulance did.

The EMTs found the woman where she had fallen on her face and twisted her left arm. She had been unable to move for three days. They took her to the hospital, where she stayed for a few days. She hadn’t sustained any major injuries but was very dehydrated.

Since the incident, Cloyed has seen her many times and says, “She’s doing much better now.” Her daughter moved in with her, and the woman now always wears a life alert necklace.

Carrier helps customer having a stroke

Almost every day on his route, Lane Wolfe, a one-year letter carrier, would stop, drop off the mail and have a brief chat with his customer Brad McLennan, who would meet Wolfe outside. However, on May 16, McLennan’s door was open, but he was nowhere to be seen.

“I’m glad I was the one that found him... I don’t think [anyone else] would have known his routine enough to think that something was wrong,” the Buffalo-Western New York Branch 3 letter carrier said.

Concerned, Wolfe went through the open door and found McLennan slumped in his office chair with his hands on his knees, sweating and vomiting. The man appeared confused and had been unable to reach his cell phone a few feet away. He was soft-spoken, which was unusual for him.

“He did not look good,” Wolfe said. The man told him, “I’ve been here for two hours. I can’t move.”

Knowing something was wrong, Wolfe asked his customer if it would be OK if he called 911. McLennan was “very, very hesitant,” Wolfe said, but the carrier got the man’s permission after five to 10 minutes.

“He wasn’t in the state of mind to know he needed help,” Wolfe said.

In the 10 minutes it took for EMS to arrive, Wolfe stayed with McLennan and kept him calm.

Wolfe answered EMTs’ questions before returning to complete his route.

The carrier later met McLennan’s family, who thanked Wolfe for helping him. McLennan has since recovered after spending time in the ICU. “I am forever grateful to Lane for his incredible help,” the man later wrote to the postmaster.

McLennan continues to greet Wolfe and chat with him when he delivers his mail. As McLennan has been trying to exercise more since the incident, they often discuss exercise.

“He told me after, ‘If you didn’t call and you did [after five to 10 minutes of talking to McLennan], I probably wouldn’t be here,’” Wolfe said.

Bleeding customer gets help from carrier

In January, Daniel Eaton, an 18-year letter carrier, was going about his route in Dayton, OH, when he saw Gisela Shipley, his 95-year-old customer, waving through her glass door.

“It’s so strange—she never gets mail, and that day she got mail,” the Branch 182 letter carrier said.

The glass was frosted and a bit dirty, so Eaton couldn’t see much through it. At first Eaton thought she was just waving hello, but when he got closer, he realized something was wrong.

“She was so covered in blood that I thought, ‘What did you do to yourself?’ Then it snapped—I was like, ‘Oh, she’s bleeding everywhere,’” he said.

When he opened the door, Eaton saw blood had streaked the floor all the way down the hallway. Shipley sat in front of the door wrapped in a blanket covered in blood. Based on the direction the blood seemed to have come from, Eaton believed she had fallen in the laundry room and hit her head on something before making her way to the front door for help.

Shipley told him she was on blood thinners, which had caused the severe bleeding. Eaton called 911 and fetched towels from her bathroom to use to apply pressure to her wound and stop the bleeding.

“Her whole head was just [so] red that I was having troubles trying to actually figure out where the blood was coming from,” Eaton said. “I put as much pressure as I could, but the blood was still just coming.”

During the situation, Eaton said he had “relied on [his] training from the Army.” After waiting with Shipley for about eight minutes, EMS arrived and told Eaton that without him, they weren’t sure if she would have made it.

Eaton is happy to have helped Shipley and likes to remind newer carriers that for “some of these elderly people, you’re the only person they may see all day. You gotta keep an eye out.” PR

Frances Perkins

FDR's secretary of labor

Frances Perkins is best known as secretary of labor during Franklin D. Roosevelt's presidency and as the first woman to hold any Cabinet post, but she was much more. Like many labor leaders, Perkins fought her whole life for justice and civil rights.

Throughout her career, Perkins proved that women are capable of leadership as much as men—at a time when women were rarely given such opportunities. She left her mark as “the woman behind the New Deal.”

Perkins was born in Boston in 1880 and grew up in Worcester, 45 miles to the west, in a middle-class family. As a student at Mount Holyoke College in Western Massachusetts, Perkins studied economic history. Her reading included How the Other Half Lives, an exposé of the New York City slums, and one of her class assignments was a factory tour to observe working conditions.

Her studies left an impression on her. After graduating from Mount Holyoke in 1902, Perkins worked as a teacher and volunteered her time working with struggling laborers. She learned firsthand the dangerous conditions of factory work and the desperation of workers unable to collect their promised wages or secure medical care for workplace injuries.

She subsequently would hold a series of positions that would prepare her for—and ultimately catapult her to—her role as U.S. labor secretary for FDR.

After earning a master's degree in economics and history from Columbia University in 1910, she served as secretary of the New York Consumers' League, where she successfully lobbied the state legislature for a bill limiting the workweek for women and children to 54 hours. In New York, Perkins also joined the women's suffrage movement.

Frances Perkins

But perhaps the defining moment in her early career was witnessing the Triangle Shirtwaist fire in 1911. She was among many bystanders who watched, unable to help, as the Triangle Shirtwaist factory in Manhattan burned, killing 146 workers, mostly women and girls. Some jumped to their deaths as people on the street tried in vain to catch them. The workers could not escape because most exits were locked to prevent them from taking unauthorized breaks. The fire led to the growth of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union (ILGWU), which later merged with the Union of Needletrades, Industrial and Textile Employees, then with the Hotel Employees and Restaurant Employees Union, and since 2004 has been known as UNITE HERE.

The Triangle Shirtwaist fire “made a terrible impression on the people of the state of New York,” Perkins recalled later. “I can’t begin to tell you how disturbed the people were everywhere. It was as though we had all done something wrong.”

In response to the fire, the city created a Committee on Safety, and Perkins was named executive secretary, a position she held until 1917. She became an expert witness for the New York State Factory Investigating Commission and led state legislators on inspections of the state's factories and worksites. New York soon passed some of the strongest workplace safety laws in the nation at the time.

In 1918, Perkins joined the New York State Industrial Commission, becoming its first female member. In 1926, she became chairwoman of the commission, and then, in 1929, the new governor, Franklin D. Roosevelt, appointed Perkins industrial commissioner of the state of New York, putting her in charge of the state Labor Department.

As she advanced in the ranks of state government, Perkins made New York a leader in progressive reform. Her accomplishments included reducing the workweek for women and children to 48 hours and advocating for minimum-wage and unemployment-insurance laws that were later enacted.

When Roosevelt became president in 1933, his choice for secretary of labor was easy. He nominated Perkins for the job, a position she would hold until shortly after Roosevelt's death in 1945.

Perkins was keenly aware of the importance of her nomination to women and their access to leadership positions. "The door might not be opened to a woman again for a long, long time," she said after accepting the nomination, "and I had a kind of duty to other women to walk in and sit down on the chair that was offered, and so establish the right of others long hence and far distant in geography to sit in the high seats."

With millions of working-class Americans suffering through the Great Depression, Perkins had the right job at the right time. She quickly became an essential part of FDR's agenda of boosting workers' rights and working conditions and constructing a social safety net.

Thanks in part to her leadership, Congress passed the Wagner Act, which gave workers the right to establish unions and bargain collectively. The Wagner Act brought order and peace to the chaotic and violent world of labor organizing and allowed millions of workers to enjoy the benefits of unions. After blazing the trail for progressive reforms in New York, Perkins brought them to the national stage, when Congress passed the Fair Labor Standards Act, which set the first minimum wage and maximum workweek for both men and women. Perkins also chaired a committee that proposed legislation that became the Social Security Act.

As soon as she took office as labor secretary, Perkins demonstrated her resolve, removing any doubts about her capability as a woman to stand up for workers, in a famous meeting on July 28, 1933, that involved a post office.

On that date, Perkins went to Homestead, PA, to meet with steelworkers who wanted to assert new union rights granted by the National Industrial Recovery Act, enacted a month earlier. The town's burgess (mayor), John Cavanaugh, had a long history of forbidding union meetings and intimidating labor leaders. He reluctantly allowed Perkins to use a city building for a meeting with labor leaders.

Perkins then noticed a crowd of several hundred steelworkers who had been kept out of the meeting. When Perkins said that she wanted to meet with them, too, Cavanaugh stopped her. "They just want to make trouble," he said.

When Perkins tried to speak to the steelworkers outside the building, Cavanaugh cut her off, claiming that there was a rule against speeches there. When she suggested moving to a nearby park, Cavanaugh told her that a local ordinance prohibited public meetings in the park. Then she spied a property Cavanaugh didn't control—the post office. To Cavanaugh's chagrin, she met with the steelworkers there and told them about their new legal rights. News photographs of the meeting made clear that she was serious about her purpose.

Anti-union forces, angered by her activism, sought revenge in 1939, when the House Un-American Activities Committee brought an impeachment resolution against her after she refused to deport Harry Bridges, a native Australian who co-founded the International Longshore and Warehouse Union representing West Coast port workers in the United States. The impeachment proceedings eventually were dropped for lack of evidence.

In 1945, Perkins resigned from her position as labor secretary and led the U.S. delegation to the International Labor Organization conference in Paris. President Harry Truman, who succeeded Roosevelt, then appointed her to the Civil Service Commission, a job she held through 1953. After serving as a professor at Cornell University's School of Industrial and Labor Relations, Perkins died in New York at age 85. She was buried in her family's plot in New Castle, ME.

The U.S. Department of Labor's headquarters in Washington, DC, is named after Perkins, who remains the longest-serving U.S. secretary of labor. USPS issued a stamp in her honor in 1980. In 2024, President Joe Biden proclaimed the Perkins family home- stead in New Castle a national monu- ment; the property also houses the Frances Perkins Center, established "to inspire current and future generations to understand and uphold the govern- ment's role in providing social justice and economic security for all."

In a 1935 radio address she made as the country grappled with the Great Depression, Perkins explained her com- mitment to long-term, lasting change:

We cannot be satisfied merely with makeshift arrangements which will tide us over the present emergen- cies. We must devise plans that will not merely alleviate the ills of today, but will prevent, as far as it is hu- manly possible to do so, their recur- rence in the future. PR

Carriers and the mail make news online

Mail-centered stories frequently appear on social media and online news sites. The following are a few that have come to NALC's attention recently. If you find a story you'd like us to consider featuring, send it to postalrecord@nalc.org.

World War II letters delivered after eight decades

More than 80 years after they were sent, a family received the letters that their father sent to his parents between May and June of 1944 when he was stationed in England during World War II during his service in the Army.

They were taken out of circulation after most likely being lost in the mail. Erik Martin, a stamp collector in Massachusetts, discovered them when he ordered a batch of WWII envelopes online. Martin said he thought some of them were strange because “three of them were still sealed, so I’ve never seen that before.” The letters had been sent by Jimmy Morris and addressed to Morris’s mother, Mrs. Francis Morris, in Drexel Hill, PA.

Searching for the recipient or her descendants, Martin posted on a Drexel Hill Facebook page. The Facebook post helped connect Martin with the sender’s living children, John Morris and Kathleen Morris Rosati, to whom Martin forwarded the letters.

It turns out, after the war, Jimmy Morris spent most of his career as a mail carrier in Delaware County.

The family appreciated getting the letters back and Rosati told Delco Today, “Oh my gosh, it’s just incredible. ... I feel like my dad’s right here with me.”

Dads spread love and advice to strangers through the mail

Ever since sleepaway camp, Rosie Paulik’s dad—Buz Ecker—wrote her letters. That continued in her adulthood, receiving what she estimates to be about 3,500 letters from her father over the years. Sometimes he would write to her daily, covering a range of topics from classes he was taking to how proud he was of her to his favorite sandwich. Now that Paulik has a son, he receives letters from grandpa, although he is only 2. Paulik keeps each one. His letters also include dad jokes, which Paulik said on The Dad Letter Project’s website are, “so bad you have no choice but to laugh.”

“The letters are seriously wonderful, charming, funny,” Paulik said in a TikTok video.

Her dad was feeling down and knowing his love for letter writing, Paulik posted on TikTok in July looking for people who would want a letter from her father. To her surprise, the request reached more than a thousand people around the world. Some of them had lost their dad, some never had the presence of a father, and some were just in need of advice. So, Paulik created the Dad Letter Project, which brings dads and those in need of a father figure together as pen pals via its website, dadletterproject.com, which Paulik created. Since its start, the project has gained 15 dads.

Jane Austen's letter to her sister

Paulik said in one TikTok video, “I think a lot of people need a dad. ... He is more than happy to be your dad if you need him.”

Jane Austen's letter to be auctioned

The importance of sisterhood can be seen in Jane Austen's work, with many of her novels featuring sisters as influences on the stories' heroines. In her personal life, the impact of her older sister Cassandra was demonstrated in a letter that Jane wrote to her, which is now on auction and expected to sell for up to $400,000.

The letter recounts Jane's life in Bath, England, shares gossip about friends and family members, talks about their friends, jokes about Cassandra's health and mourns the loss of their social status after the death of their father. In the letter, Jane describes how “reduced she felt” three months after his death.

Only three years apart in age, the pair had a close bond, both intellectually and emotionally. Cassandra said only two days after Jane's death that she “had not a thought concealed from her.”

Cassandra destroyed all but 161 of the total 3,000 letters Jane had written in her life as a way to protect her legacy. It is believed that Jane was not very productive at this time, struggling with her move to Bath and the fact that she might have been depressed during a period of about three to four years before the letter was sent. All the letters sent during that period were destroyed. Cassandra also painted the only surviving portrait of Jane, the sole representation of Jane's appearance remaining in existence.

In addition to the letter, there will be other Austen memorabilia, which all together have an estimated worth of $1.3 million.

Postcard returned to sender 72 years later

A postcard with a return address in Ottawa, IL, had been lost at the U.N. building in New York City for 72 years.

In 1953 Alan Ball took a train from Ottawa to New York, where he would board a plane to Puerto Rico to spend the summer with his aunt. Before hopping on the plane, he explored the city, visiting the United Nations Secretariat Building, where he used a 2-cent stamp to mail a postcard to his parents telling them that he had made it to New York.

Ball had written just his first name on the postcard, and by the time the letter was found, the recipient had changed addresses, so it was a difficult feat—to put it mildly—to find “Alan.”

Despite this, the Ottawa postmaster, Mark Thompson, was determined to get it back to its original sender. In August, Thompson began asking around, and the story ended up in the local news.

Community volunteers and the LaSalle County Genealogy Guild in Illinois offered to aid in the search. Eventually they found Alan Ball, who now lives in Sandpoint, ID.

"When I first heard about it, I think I just started laughing," Ball said to CNN.

Ball told CNN that when he received the letter, the letter carrier smiled and said, "Sorry it's so late."

Celebrities who were letter carriers, postal workers

Being a letter carrier requires determination, people skills and endurance. So, it should come as no surprise that several letter carriers went on to become famous for their success in acting, politics, athletics, art and music and more.

The Postal Service compiled a list of former postal workers who are now famous, which was updated in mid-September. Included among them are actor, producer and narrator Morgan Freeman, singer-songwriter Jason Mraz, KISS guitarist Ace Frehley, "The Office" actor Steve Carrell, Walt Disney, President Harry S Truman, President Abraham Lincoln, actor and comedian Sherman Hemsley and jazz bassist Charles Mingus.

Steve Carrell said in an interview on the "Late Show" in December 2018 that "it was one of the hardest jobs I ever had." In 1985, Carrell worked as a rural carrier in Littleton, MA. Being a rural carrier in a small post office, Carrell didn't get his own truck; he instead had to use his small Toyota. He sat on the passenger side of the bench seat, steering with one hand and putting the mail in the boxes with the other.

"It would also take me till 9 or 10 at night to deliver the mail 'cause I was doing this stupid thing," Carrell said on the show.

Another celebrity who worked for the Postal Service is Jason Mraz, a singer-songwriter known for his song "I'm Yours." He worked as a casual clerk in Richmond, VA, around 1995.

Mraz told Newsweek, "All of our most precious documents, contracts, presents and checks from Grandma go through their trusted hands. I personally think [letter carriers] ... get overlooked."

Charles Mingus had worked for the Postal Service three separate times at three different offices. He worked as a letter carrier in San Francisco in 1946 and in Los Angeles in 1949, then three years later he became a clerk in New York City.

His sporadic postal career was likely due to the fact that "to be a jazz musician is a meager livelihood for most," USPS historian Steve Kochersperger told Newsweek. "He was a brilliant musician, but he depended on the Postal Service when he needed to pay the bills."

Although many left their jobs at the Postal Service to pursue other interests, which led to fame and success, some continued to work for the Service for stability while also pursuing their passions. For example, Kermit Oliver, who worked as an overnight mail sorter for 29 years in Waco, TX, was able to have a career as a successful artist. His paintings sold for up to $150,000 each and he designed 17 scarves for Hermès. Another example is Lucius Talley, also known as "The Spoonman," who has had a successful career playing the spoons percussion instrument while maintaining a 29-year career as a letter carrier in New York City and Nashville, TN, where he retired from in 1992. PR

Making deposits for military service

As planning for retirement is on the minds of many of our members, we're reprinting this article, last published in May, about how to make deposits toward retirement for time spent in military service.

The law that permits certain veterans to make deposit for their time in the military to count toward Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS) or Federal Employees Retirement System (FERS) retirement (eligibility and amount of annuity) requires the employee to completely pay the full amount of the deposit prior to separation for retirement.

This column begins with a general introduction to making a deposit for military service, follows with discussion of the Postal Service's obligation to provide accurate and complete counseling regarding deposits for military service, and ends with a review of the exception to the general rule that military deposits must be completed prior to separation.

Under the CSRS and the FERS, an individual's "years of service" is a determining factor to establish eligibility to retire and to calculate the amount of the retirement pension. Generally, years of service are computed for a retiring employee by measuring the elapsed time between the start date of career service and the date of separation for retirement.

Military veterans can, in most cases, increase their years of service by making a deposit for their time in the military. Many veterans will find this advantageous because doing so may enable them to retire earlier and receive a higher pension. The amount of the deposit depends on which retirement system a veteran is in, how much they earned in the military and when the deposit is made.

The Office of Personnel Management (OPM) is the federal agency that has authority over CSRS and FERS retirement matters. OPM regulations require that deposits for military service be paid in full prior to the date of retirement. The deposit must be made to the employing agency (in our case, the Postal Service). The amount of the deposit is 7 percent of basic military pay under CSRS, or 3 percent of basic military pay under FERS. Interest will begin to accrue two years after beginning career employment at the Postal Service, and is compounded annually. However, if the deposit is completed prior to the third year, there is no interest charged.

The Uniformed Services Employment and Reemployment Rights Act (USERRA) provides an alternative method to calculate the deposit under certain conditions. Where military service interrupts creditable civilian service and reemployment, the deposit payable may not exceed the amount that would have been deducted and withheld from basic pay during civilian service if the employee had not performed the period of military service. The Postal Service, when applicable, should calculate the deposit under the normal method and the alternate method under USERRA. The deposit will be the lesser of the two.

OPM regulates federal employers, including the Postal Service, when it comes to retirement matters. OPM provides the following guidance in a Benefits Administration Letter (BAL 17-101) dated Jan. 27, 2017:

- Each federal employing agency...must have the capacity to counsel, calculate, collect and to post all payments related to employees' deposits for military service...
- Agencies are required to provide accurate and complete counseling to all employees who seek to make post-1956 military deposit; this includes counseling as to the effect of paying or not paying the deposit(s) as well as the proper calculation of the deposit(s).
- Agencies are responsible for including accurate information about the accrual of interest on military deposits and to accurately determine and apply the Interest Accrual Date in any given request to make deposit for a period of military service.
- In general, an [agency] administrative error occurs when in response to an employee's inquiry, the employing agency provides material misinformation concerning the deposit and the consequences of not making the deposit prior to separation... In addition, if an employee, at the time of election, affirmatively asks for information regarding the amount of the military deposit or the consequences of failing to make a deposit, the government commits administrative error if its response either misrepresents the dollar amounts in question, or is so indirect, inaccurate, or incomplete as to confuse the employee as to the amount of the deposit or the effect of any failure to make the deposit on the annuity recalculation.

It is clear from the above that the Postal Service is required to provide accurate and complete counseling regarding making deposit for military service to any employee requesting such counseling. There have, however, been instances where the Postal Service provided inaccurate and incomplete advice about making deposit for military time. Fortunately, there is an exception to completing the full deposit prior to separation: If a veteran did not make deposit prior to separation due to administrative error by the employing agency, the former employee may have the opportunity to make or complete a military deposit after separation.

If a veteran does not make deposit for military service prior to retirement because of a Postal Service administrative error or incorrect advice, they can write to OPM and request belated deposit. OPM will investigate and make a decision allowing or disallowing the request. Adverse decisions by OPM on such a request can be appealed to the Merit Systems Protection Board.

VETERAN PRESENCE

Lt. Col. Alexander Jefferson

Many military veterans trade one uniform for another when they become letter carriers. But their service never stops. What follows is a collection of stories about veterans who have worked or still are working to make a difference in their communities.

POST OFFICE RENAMED FOR TUSKEGEE AIRMAN

A post office in Mt. Clemens, MI, is now the “Lt. Col. Alexander Jefferson Post Office” to honor a member of the Tuskegee Airmen, the first Black military aviators to fight for the United States, who later became a letter carrier.

Jefferson was born in Detroit, MI, in 1921. During World War II, he received flight training with other Black airmen in Tuskegee, AL, and served with the 332nd Fighter Group as a P-51 “Red Tail” pilot based in Italy. He was part of a fighter escort wing, which would protect the bombing missions of the U.S. 15th Air Force by attacking key ground targets, and would guard the bombing mission against enemy fighters. On his 19th mission, Jefferson was shot down over Toulon, France, and captured by German troops. He spent the rest of the war in POW camps in Poland and Bavaria until he was liberated by Gen. George Patton’s Third Army.

Upon returning to Michigan, he worked as a letter carrier while earning his teaching certificate. He later earned a master’s degree in education from Wayne State University in 1953. Retiring from the Air Force Reserves in 1969 with the rank of lieutenant colonel, he dedicated 31 years to the Detroit Public School System, retiring in 1979 as an assistant principal.

Jefferson was awarded the Purple Heart in 2001 and, along with the other Tuskegee Airmen, the Congressional Gold Medal in 2007. He is also recognized on the Wall of Honor in the Smithsonian’s National Air and Space Museum in Washington, DC. He died on June 22, 2022, at age 100.

The post office was renamed in a ceremony on July 21 attended by Sen. Gary Peters (D-MI), who sponsored the legislation to change the name, by Jefferson’s granddaughter Earnestine Lavergne and by nearly a dozen letter carriers and other postal employees at the post office who are veterans.

“Lt. Col. Alexander Jefferson served his country with distinction with the Tuskegee Airmen, and cemented himself in local history as a dedicated educator and letter carrier,” Sen. Peters said. “I was proud to lead legislation dedicating the Mount Clemens post office in his name, helping to ensure his life and legacy are remembered for future generations.”

VETERAN, CARRIER, COUNCIL MEMBER, MONUMENT-MAKER

He’s a veteran, a letter carrier and president of his branch, and a city council member. Jamie Lukens knows what leadership means, and he led the creation of a veteran’s memorial in his town that was dedicated on July 4.

Lukens, president of Barberton, OH Branch 897, pushed for legislation to create and partly fund the memorial, with the rest of the costs coming from private donations. But his history of leadership began in 1993 when he joined the Army a few months after graduating from high school.

"It seemed like a logical choice. College wasn't really something I was interested in at the time," he said. He served until October 1997, including a deployment to the peacekeeping mission in Bosnia.

"I'm very patriotic," he said. "I just feel like we live in the best country in the world. And that was part of the reason why I wanted to serve my country."

After the Army, Lukens went straight to the Postal Service. "I heard the Post Office was hiring, and it was good work, and it was steady work," he said. "So, I applied. I got hired in the Post Office about six weeks after being out of the military."

He started carrying the mail in Barberton. After working as a casual and a temporary employee, and moving to another area for a while, Lukens became a full-time carrier and a union activist, working his way up to president of his branch in 2017.

Along the way, he became a letter carrier congressional liaison (LCCL), his first direct involvement in the political world.

"I was asked to be the letter carrier congressional liaison for my region here in Ohio, for the letter carriers. And I never was really politically involved or anything before that," he said. But working as a LCCL showed him a new side of leadership.

"After I started [serving as] the letter carrier congressional liaison, I was like, 'This is interesting,'" he said. "To me, it's a fascinating part of our country."

When some citizens of Norton, the town next to Barberton where he lives, asked if he'd like to run for city council, his experience as a LCCL moved him to try.

In most U.S. cities and towns, running for city council isn't an option for active carriers because of the Hatch Act, which forbids federal and postal employees from engaging in partisan activities, including running for office as a member of a political party. But Norton is one of the rare cities where parties don't nominate candidates and the ballot doesn't show party labels.

Lukens ran for a council seat in 2021 and won. This year, he is running for reelection unopposed, so he hopes to start his second term in January.

As a new council member, Lukens set to work on his goal of creating a monument to the area's military veterans, including a memorial to those lost in battle. With seed money from the city and private donations, including a donation from his branch and the sale of memorial paving bricks with engraved names incorporated into the monument, the town created Lukens's vision and dedicated it on the Fourth of July.

"It's dedicated in honor and memory of all of our military veterans from all the different military branches," Lukens said.

While the monument encompasses the various military branches, the walkway leading to it recognizes individual veterans. "It's a walkway that zigzags up to the main memorial," he said. "And we have that portion filled with memorial pavers that residents were able to purchase. It could be for any military veteran, loved one, whether they're deceased or alive. We have all kinds of personalized memorial pavers that residents have bought for their loved ones."

Lukens and his wife, Chrys

Lukens said that other towns should emulate Norton and other places with similar monuments.

"I think that every city should have a veterans memorial," he said. "We owe our veterans a debt of gratitude, whether it's combat veterans or just veterans that didn't go to combat. It's a big part of our freedom in our country."

"I plan on taking my grandkids" to the monument, Lukens added. "Hopefully, I'm alive and I have great-grandkids when I'm heading down there with a walker or a chair to show them." PR

MARCH FOR DIABETES

Letter carrier drafts others to help raise money for research

Right: Norbert Teklinsky

Bob Mandera has always stepped right into the action. He served two years in the Army, including one year in Vietnam, and became a letter carrier in 1968, the same year he joined both NALC and the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW).

The Pittsburgh, PA Branch 84 member had already been a regular at March of Dimes walks in his city for a few years when his 5-year-old daughter was diagnosed with juvenile diabetes in 1976. “I thought, ‘Oh, man, she can’t have this. I’ve got to get a cure. I’ve got to do something,’” he said.

He immediately turned to the American Diabetes Association. “I joined right away to get information on how to treat her,” Mandera said. “And they were having a book sale—paperback sale. They were having bake sales. And I thought, ‘We’ve got to get some real money in here if we’re going to cure this thing.’”

By 1977, Mandera had put together an event of his own, founding the “Veterans March for Diabetes” along with fellow Vietnam veteran and Branch 84 member Norbert Teklinsky, whose daughter also has diabetes.

Once they got the approval to proceed, they participated in their walk for the first time in fall 1978, walking from Pittsburgh to the shores of Lake Erie over the course of three days. “We set it up, and that’s where it started,” Mandera said. “I made all the arrangements—called hotels, restaurants, got all the magazines, newspapers, TV—and we ... just took a knapsack and walked 100 miles.”

When the walk started out, they began collecting money by per-mile pledges, but they eventually settled on flat donations to make it less complicated. “I approached businesses, and just everybody I knew,” Mandera said.

The walk grew as years went by. Soon, they decided to reverse the route from Erie back to Pittsburgh for improved logistics—and visibility. “That way, we could have a van check on us and carry all our equipment,” Mandera said. “And we could have a finish line, because when we got to Erie the first year, there was nobody there. We just got in my wife’s station wagon and came home. ... And I said, ‘Well, if we reversed it, maybe some people would come out.’”

That proved to be a good idea, as was Teklinsky’s suggestion to finish at his post office. “We changed our finish line to the McKnight Post Office in Pittsburgh. And we had a DJ there. We had the postmaster of Pittsburgh, my postmaster, the union president ... and TV was there,” Mandera said.

Moreover, he noted, “There were hundreds of people at the finish line. And it really got to be a big deal. People would see us marching down McKnight Road and wonder what’s going on. They’d pull in the post office and try to find out. But that’s where Norb’s idea was. ... He said, ‘Why don’t we go to the post office and walk down McKnight Road and we’ll get all that exposure on a Sunday,’ which was an ideal idea. ... It was unbelievable.”

When it came to running the program, Mandera relied on his determination and eagerness to learn. “I used to tell people at these diabetes meetings [that] I just learned this because I wanted to cure my daughter, I wanted to raise money,” he said. “You learn as you go on, and there are so many good people to help you.”

“It just snowballed,” Mandera said of the effort.

He also served as chairman for diabetes awareness for his local VFW. “Then they moved me into being the chairman for the Pittsburgh area. Then I became the state chairman for 22 years. So, all that ... brought more money for more posts. Then we had the whole state of Pennsylvania donate,” he said.

Mandera always tried to get the point across that diabetes affected them all. "At the time, 25 percent of veterans had diabetes," he said. He'd look around at 600 attendees at meetings and conventions and tell them, "Everybody in this room knows somebody [who] has diabetes.' So, it was starting to sink in, where they're really backing me, which the VFW really jumped aboard, and then the money started really coming in."

There were a few moments that particularly stood out to the carrier over the years with the event.

"We used to pick somebody to walk for every year that had diabetes," Mandera explained. "I found out this little kid in Coraopolis got diabetes when he was 9 months old. I thought, 'Holy mackerel. My daughter was 5, but at least she could tell you when she didn't feel good. But 9 months?'"

He told the family they were walking in honor of him that year. "I didn't expect it, but they came to the finish line," said. "In fact, before the finish line, they were along the road, and they handed me that baby to carry him across the finish line. And I'm thinking, this kid, he was like 10 or 11 months old by then, so I'm carrying him across the finish line. That was the greatest thing."

Another year, a 6- or 7-year-old girl who had diabetes jumped out of a station wagon. "She ran back to the walkers and handed us a $5 bill. She's like, 'Thank you for walking for me. I have got to beat it.'" the carrier said, adding that the walkers were all in tears. "And you're thinking, 'This is what it's all about.' ... It all hit home."

"There's a million goofy stories—about the guy getting attacked by a hawk, and somebody wants to get a groundhog out of her garage. I don't know who she thought we were," he continued. "One year, somebody thought we were state workers walking on the road, and they showed us their driveway. It had to be repaired because of the state runoff, or something was eating their driveway up. 'Sir, we are not with the state.' [But] when it comes to a little kid bringing a $5 [bill], and carrying that baby, it was just unbelievable."

Besides the walk, they would hold other events as well. "They had skate-a-thons where I'd manage them, and I'd get friends that manage the different skate-a-thons. I had all these nights. We got stuffed animals donated, and I had raffles at a car show. Dunk tanks. ... And then they went to candles. I sold candles. I had hot dog sales, had car shows. People would call me and say, 'We're having a car show, Bob. you want to have something in it to raise money for diabetes?' People were so good to me," he said, "like the hotels, the restaurants, they were so good to me. It all worked out. But I always kept pushing that I'm nobody. I'm not having any education. This is all self-taught, because I want to do what I can to help cure diabetes."

Mandera carried mail for 32 years, retiring in 2000, and served as a shop steward for 16 of them. He walked in the event for 25 years before wondering if they should end it, as he had so much trouble walking it during their quarter-century walk in the early 2000s.

"I thought, 'Maybe it's time to quit and just be in the van, be the driver,'" he said, adding that one of the original walkers convinced him to keep it go-

Hampton dad to walk again against diabetes

By SUSAN MANNELLA
Post-Gazette Staff Writer

Bob Mandera has learned a lot in the past four years.

The Hampton man has learned a lot about diabetes since he found out that his 9-year-old daughter has the disease. He's also learned a lot about comfortable shoes and long-distance walking.

Mandera's knowledge will be put to the test May 9 when, for the third

'We have to do something. You can't just sit back.'"

The Manderas began attending meetings of the American Diabetes Association's local chapter in Oakland to learn more about the disease.

Pamela, a third-grader at Poff Elementary School in Hampton, learned to give herself injections once a day by practicing. "I stuck my stuffed animals first and then I stuck my dad a couple of times," Pamela said. "When I can do ing. "He talked me into it, and then we went on and did 40 of them."

There were always people who wanted to do the walk over those four decades. Mandera had created a group of parents of diabetic kids in the North Hills of Pittsburgh that grew over the years, and a number of the members were walkers.

"It's crazy, the people we met over the years," Mandera said, including one who had done the Appalachian Trail as well as others from the VFW. "It was wild. We had people from all walks of life. We had doctors, lawyers, dentists."

And sometimes his letter carrier expertise came into play. "One doctor, he was having trouble the last day," Mandera said. "He put these shoes on, and his ankles were killing him."

After observing the man, he encouraged him to change his footwear. "So, he's walking for about an hour," Mandera said, "and he says to me, 'Yeah,

MARCH FOR DIABETES

I feel a lot better.’ I said, ‘I know. I tell everybody [to] try to stay on the level. Don’t get in the berm of the road, way down where you’re pulling your ankles.’ And he said, ‘This is great, Bob.’ And I said, ‘Who’s a doctor here? You’re supposed to know this stuff.’ ”

Teklinsky, who received two Purple Hearts for his military service and who served as a letter carrier for 30 years before retiring in 2015, died in November of last year. Teklinsky was the backbone of the event, Mandera said. “He brought donations in from all different places. He made connections, like watches and stuff to donate or to raffle off. He was a great guy,” he said, adding, “He’d come up with the ideas, and everybody loved him.”

Both carriers were recognized for their actions by NALC, each being named the union’s Humanitarian of the Year—Mandera in 1984, and Teklinsky in 2003.

Though there still is not a cure for diabetes, both Mandera and Teklinsky’s daughters are doing well and thriving. He and Teklinsky put in so much effort over the years because of them, Mandera said.

When the diagnosis happens, “You say, ‘I wish this was me, not my daughter,’ ” the carrier said.

“We made $2,000 on the first walk, and we thought, ‘Oh, this is so great.’ ” He became discouraged the following year, when they made less, but they persisted.

When they began getting matching funds from the American Diabetes Association, “it really starts snowballing,” Mandera said, “and the VFW caught on. And then they start donating. And I think right now [we’re] at the point of $3 million raised so far.”

Eight years ago, Mandera moved to Texas, and he thought that that really might be the end of the effort. Instead, they partnered with an established diabetes walk in York, PA, sponsored by the VFW and run by another long-time walker. “I told the VFW, ‘Let’s just transfer all the funds they raised, [and] go to the York walk from now on.’ ... So, they’re keeping it going. They do a minimum of $25,000 a year.”

Despite the distance, Mandera’s involvement with the effort is far from over. Every year since they’ve stopped their own walk, he calls the ADA’s Virginia headquarters to encourage it to set up a fund to match the York VFW’s funds raised. “I bugged them for months,” he said. “And it’s been working for the last three or four years, where they matched at $25,000.”

He continued: “I’m in touch with them all the time,” he said. “I’m still a life member of the VFW, and I thought, ‘Well, as long as they’re still doing it, I’m going to help them.’ As long as I know there’s money. I mean, I’m not having fundraisers in Texas, but I’m keeping at getting theirs matched so they can bring that money.”

Mandera says he’s hopeful that letter carriers reading this will think about starting a walk for a cause close to their hearts in their own communities. Now 80, he hopes that his own effort keeps going and anticipates being able to participate in the 50th walk in a few years. He’s proud of his legacy with the Veterans March for Diabetes and won’t stop helping fund research for a cure.

“It makes me feel good that I’m still bringing money in, even if I have to bug people and get them mad at me,” he said. “I’m not giving up on keeping the money rolling, as long as there’s something going on that I can get involved with.” PR

CATCH-22

After eight years of serving his country—two of them in the Iraq War—Bradley Melgoza left the Army in a wheelchair in 2016. But even if he wasn't a reconnaissance scout anymore, he knew his service wasn't done.

"I was always having to get help from others," the Centennial, CO Branch 5996 member said of going through recovery. "So, I said, 'If I get out of this chair, I'm going to do a job where I can continue helping people.'"

It took Melgoza a year and a half to get well enough to stop using the wheelchair, and once he did, he took and passed the police aptitude test and became a Chicago police officer. Even though he wasn't using a wheelchair anymore, he still had the invisible scars of post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD) with severe depression and anxiety from his time in combat.

"I get into these moments where I can't stop thinking about a specific event," he said. "And it could be triggered by a smell, a sound. It could be triggered by opening up the lockers, believe it or not."

It didn't take him long to realize that there would be too many triggers for him while being a cop.

"It only took one instance of fire—of being under pressure—that reminded me that I was broken," he said. "That I shouldn't be wearing a uniform."

But Melgoza was determined to continue trying to find his role. He decided, if he couldn't be a police officer, he'd try being a paramedic, which he did after moving to Colorado. But the experience didn't go much better.

"I was taking my paramedic course classes, and I had a mini flashback while riding with the Aurora Fire Department," he said. Even as he was realizing that being a paramedic wouldn't work, he saw another service that wears a uniform, when his ride-along came to a letter carrier suffering from heat exhaustion.

"Just seeing the presence for the community, how they helped him, told me, 'Wow, you know what? This guy is still in service. He's still helping his community. People are happy to see him when he shows up, not like a cop or anybody else,'" Melgoza said. "I was like, 'I want to be a letter carrier.'"

He followed that thread, took the postal exam and started as a letter carrier in 2023.

Since being injured in combat, Melgoza has used some combination of medication, therapy and service dogs to help him function.

Service dogs are specially trained dogs that assist individuals with disabilities in performing various tasks, depending on the specific needs of the handler. Some help with mobility, such as seeing-eye dogs, while others can alert about seizures, low blood sugar or other medical conditions. And some provide emotional support during medical crises.

Melgoza got his first service dog while still in the Army, as he was in recovery.

"I got the glimpse of, 'Hey, the service dog can actually help remind me to take my medicine. The service dog can remind me to get out of bed and not sit there, can remind me to take care of him and not just myself,'" he said.

He compares the bond with a service dog to someone from his Army unit.

However, when that dog got hit by a city bus and had to be euthanized due to its injuries, "I was like, 'Let me just numb myself with medicine,'" he said. "And I did. I numbed myself with medicine for eight years after that incident."

Eight years after the bus accident, and after starting work for the Postal Service, a representative from a Purple Heart organization reached out to Melgoza asking, "We have some tools and resources for you to go back to work. Is that something you're interested in?"

He told them that he was already back at work, but "setting my pride aside, this is definitely hard."

The organization presented him with options, including another service animal through an organization called Hero Puppies for Life. Melgoza's wife asked him, "Do you think you're ready for another service dog?"

He decided that he wanted to give it a try.

A letter carrier told him that his German Shepherd was having puppies and that he could have one if it qualified for the program. When a 12-week-old puppy was accepted into the training, Melgoza named him Sergeant.

Sergeant had to go through a basic canine obedience course, then advanced obedience and then disability-specific training. While Sergeant and Melgoza would work with a trainer every other week, most of the training was done by Melgoza himself. "Even though your dog is being trained, it's being trained by you because the dog is listening to you," he said.

Sergeant was trained to respond when Melgoza experiences his symptoms. "What Sergeant does is, he'll ground me. He'll push me aside. He'll say, 'Hey, you're not there, you're here,'" the letter carrier said. "And if that doesn't work, he'll actually stand up on his hind legs and give me a hug. That brings me out of it, because you're not getting a hug from anybody in a situation like that."

For Melgoza, the reason a service dog works well for him is because it's similar to how his military unit worked. "There's the camaraderie that you have with the guys in the field. You can just look at them and they can communicate with you because you train with them, you breathe with them, you sleep with them. They know you inside and out," he said.

"With my service dog, you're having him at 12 weeks old. He knows nothing else other than our relationship, his training, and then the world. So even in the mornings when I wake up, he can tell me I had a bad night. He's the first to greet me. He's the first to make sure that I get in my routine. He's the first to make sure that I actually make it to work and that I don't wallow in bed and sit there and say, 'I don't want to do today.' Because he is still a responsibility. He still needs to be taken out.

"So, it helps me get the sense of purpose," Melgoza said.

As he saw that Sergeant was taking to the training, he didn't want to stop for the hours he was at work. He approached his supervisor and said, "I know you guys have noticed that I've been using a lot of FMLA. In lieu of taking all of these medications that don't allow me to drive after a certain time ... I am getting a service dog."

"Most of my management's reaction were like, 'You're a mailman. How can you have a service dog?' and 'It's not going to happen.'"

But one of the managers said, "Let me figure out what we need to do to make this possible, because I know there's at least one service dog in the Post Office."

Melgoza found the story about Buffalo-Western New York Branch 3 member Dwayne Jensen and his service dog, Beau, which appeared in the November 2022 issue of The Postal Record. He showed it to his managers to demonstrate that it was possible. His managers contacted the District Reasonable Accommodation Committee (DRAC)—the committee responsible for helping USPS evaluate and provide reasonable accommodations, such as workplace modifications or schedule changes, for qualified employees and applicants with disabilities. The DRAC representative said that it could be allowed. Melgoza just needed to provide copies of Sergeant's certification as a service dog.

"Then I was frozen," he said, and he told them, "Well, he's not fully certified."

That was when Melgoza found himself caught in a catch-22. Sergeant couldn't come to work until he was certified, and he couldn't be certified until he could show that he could function at Melgoza's workplace. The longer this impasse lasted, the more hopeless the situation seemed to Melgoza.

Afraid he would have to cover the full cost of the training—$24,000—he explained the situation to the trainers, and they said, "We're not going to let this happen. You're a mailman, right? So, all you do is walk to boxes and deliver mail. Let's do that."

If they couldn't demonstrate Sergeant's proficiency during the letter carrier's workday, they would recreate the workday with his mailbag, outside of work hours. "I started acting like I was outside delivering mail, and the trainer would be behind me," he said.

Sergeant had to break any habits that he couldn't do while Melgoza was working, such as if he saw another dog, he couldn't go and sniff the other dog. They also had to work on Sergeant being able to perform in all weather elements, just like any letter carrier.

But that didn't account for office time. The trainers asked him, "Well, what does that look like?"

And he said, "If you were in your grandma's kitchen and she kept her old china in this buffet thing." So, they went to a thrift store and bought two of those.

They also needed to account for the noise in the station, such as with over-the-road (OTR) containers. "What we got were cake parts off of Facebook marketplace. But they resembled the noise that the OTRs were making,” Melgoza said. “And so, we rolled those around him in the facility ... where he was being trained.

Melgoza got Sergeant as a puppy and trained him to be his service dog.

“So, we had to make a mock-up of the post office.”

They then had to make sure that Sergeant would function in this environment by simulating a mock alert in the mock office. “They monitor how he goes to alert,” the letter carrier explained. “Is he vocal when he alerts? Is he loud? Is it going to create a disruption? Or does he politely go over? Does he bother one person? Does he try to get the attention of one person and drag them over?”

They also monitored him out in public, in stores such as Target, Home Depot and Whole Foods.

Once Sergeant was certified, Melgoza took him to his station, hoping he could finally accompany him at work.

“He graduated April 24 from his course,” Melgoza said, “and April 25, I walked in to work with him.”

He presented all of the certification and other records and explained that the Americans with Disabilities Act allows service animals in workplaces, even ones that don’t allow pets. They told him to go sit in his car until his manager got there.

“I sat in my car and I didn’t get to clock in to work until a whole month later,” Melgoza said.

During that time, they treated it as a reasonable accommodation and the DRAC reviewed his dog’s certification, his doctor’s recommendation, and made him meet with a nurse on a virtual visit.

The nurse asked him questions such as, “Will Sergeant be a disruption in operation?” “In the event that a dog was to attack you, what would your dog do?” “If you started being triggered and your dog needed to do its work, what would your dog do?”

When he was under observation, co-workers who hadn’t seen him for a month came up to him and said they were glad to see him. But it started to overwhelm him, because he felt like he should have been allowed to be working since he first came in with Sergeant. Sergeant sensed it and alerted.

“My dog actually jumped up and gave me a hug in front of the postmaster,” the letter carrier said. “And the postmaster looked at me and said, ‘Oh, wow. ... I guess I didn’t realize how grounding really works with dogs.’ And then the whole rest of the time, she did nothing but gave me compliments and apologized on my manager’s behalf.”

But they still weren’t done. Another manager observed them on the street for a few hours before approaching Melgoza and said, “I had never seen a dog more well behaved. Your dog is just about a year old and I cannot believe it. I have no issues. I don’t need to follow you for the rest of the day.”

It still took a few more days, but Melgoza—along with Sergeant—was finally allowed to return to work, with no issues since.

“In fact, the manager that made that comment in the beginning came up to me and said, ‘I am truly impressed, and I know I had my doubts. However, you and Sergeant had proven to me and crushed all of those doubts that I had,’ ” Melgoza recalled.

While he’s on the job, Sergeant wears a vest with a patch that says, “Ignore me. I’m working.”

Residents on Melgoza’s route now recognize the team, which the letter carrier says is both good and bad.

“People now know, ‘OK, he has a disability.’ People now know like, ‘Oh, snap, he’s been in the military,’ which was something that I hid and concealed before, because I felt that getting injured, I failed. However, the attention that Sergeant brings now, since I don’t see it as bad now, it helps me talk about the military experience, which helps me see how people truly view me, which gives me great confidence,” he said.

But the carrier also knows that he comes second to his dog. When people see them on the street, “It’s always, ‘Hey, Sergeant. Hey, Brad.’ It’s never, ‘Hey, Brad. Hey, Sergeant,’ ” Melgoza joked.

He hopes that he and Sergeant can help any letter carriers or others going through tough times to seek out assistance. “If even one person sees us and starts to wonder if something like this could help them too, it’s worth it. No one should suffer in silence. There are different ways to heal—and sometimes that healing comes on four legs.” PR

THANK YOU FOR YOUR SERVICE

Every Nov. 11, Americans celebrate our military veterans—the men and women who served in the armed forces, whether active duty, reserves or National Guard—on Veterans Day.

The holiday began as Armistice Day in 1919, marking the end of World War I on Nov. 11 the previous year. It became a day to honor veterans in 1954.

About 1 in 5 NALC members are veterans who went from military uniforms to postal ones. Along the way, they have brought determination and dedication to their postal jobs.

NALC created the NALC Veterans Group in 2015, to honor and to serve the veterans who went on to carry the mail. The Veterans Group provides resources and information that veterans can use, including about military and USPS benefits available to them.

“For a decade now, the NALC Veterans Group has honored and assisted vets in our ranks,” NALC President Brian L. Renfro said, “and we’ve only just begun.”

Any NALC member who is a veteran of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, National Guard or Space Force can join, but you have to sign up if you want to be a member. The list on the following pages contains the names of the nearly 20,000 NALC members who have joined the Veterans Group as of press time. If you are a veteran and haven’t joined yet, follow the instructions below so you can be listed in The Postal Record for next year’s Veterans Day issue.

Membership in the Veterans Group provides access to information and tools specific to veterans’ rights and benefits.

With more than 20 percent of city letter carriers having military experience, the Postal Service is among the largest civilian employers of veterans, and it benefits from their commitment, sense of mission, and reliability. This same level of devotion and allegiance also has made the NALC Veterans Group one of the strongest and most successful veterans organizations in the labor movement.

The NALC Veterans Group is led by Assistant to the President for Community Services Christina Vela Davidson, an Army veteran.

“Our success, in the military or the Postal Service, happens when we stick together,” Davidson said. “As a disabled veteran, I’ve experienced this firsthand. I truly believe in veterans helping veterans.”

Membership in the Veterans Group is open to any NALC member or Auxiliary member with past or current military service.

Again, membership in the NALC Veterans Group is not automatic—NALC does not have a record of every member who is a veteran. There are several ways to join the Veterans Group. You can fill out the form in The Postal Record and mail it to: NALC

In this special veterans-focused issue of The Postal Record, we honor the veterans in our ranks and list the members of the NALC Veterans Group. We also bring you stories of individual veterans. A post office in Michigan is named for a World War II fighter pilot who became a letter carrier and a teacher when he returned home (page 20). A letter carrier who is a veteran and a member of his city council spearheads the construction of a veterans monument in Barberton, OH (page 21). A retired letter carrier from Pittsburgh, PA, tells us about raising money to fight diabetes (page 22). An Iraq War veteran fights for permission to bring his service animal on his route in Centennial, CO (page 25).

You continue to serve your country—
THANK YOU!

Start your hiring off on the right foot with employment verification compliance

Paul Barner

We all know that finding the right people to serve our members as employees at our branch offices and state associations is critical to our success. But what we cannot forget is that lack of compliance with the employment verification form—the I-9—could represent a serious financial and legal threat. In recent years, the federal government has escalated its efforts to oversee and enforce I-9 compliance through workplace audits and raids, and the I-9 is more than just a compulsory onboarding employment form. It is a legal document requiring every employer (remember, that's you if you have anyone earning W-2 wages) to verify their employees' immigration status under penalty of perjury. And noncompliance with those verification requirements is a civil violation and can result in heavy fines and penalties. Given this emphasis, I-9 compliance is more important than ever.

What should you do?

Here are some tips to protect your branch or state association against I-9-related penalties:

- First, remember to download the most up-to-date form at uscis.gov/sites/default/files/document/forms/i-9.pdf, making as many copies as you need, or simply directing your employees to the easy-to-populate e-form.
- Section 1 of I-9 must be completed by each employee (again, anyone earning W-2 wages through your branch or state association) by their first day of work—the period of time after the job offer has been accepted and before the end of the employee's first day.
- Section 2 must be completed by you (the employer) within three business days of the date of hire.
- The instruction document and List of Acceptable Documents (page 2 of the I-9) should be made available to employees at the time they complete Section 1.

Employees are free to choose which legal documents they submit to establish their identity and eligibility to work in the United States. They must present original, unexpired documents in person to the company representative (a branch officer or other designated employee who is completing Section 2 of the I-9).

I-9s should also be stored in a secure location separate from personnel files. Although photocopies of employment identification are not required, if you choose to make photocopies of documents, they should be made for every employee, retained with the I-9s, and presented during an investigation or audit by an authorized agent. Completed I-9s must be retained for as long as an individual is employed. I-9s for employees who have separated must be retained for three years after the date of hire (first day of work for pay) or one year after the date employment ends, whichever is later.

Instances in which completing the I-9 varies from the norm:

- Reverification—If the employee's work authorization document has an expiration date, you must reverify the employee's right to work prior to that expiration date. Also, when an employment authorization expiration date is provided in Section 1, you are required to reverify employment authorization on or before the date shown. The need for reverification is triggered by the document presented by the employee and by the box the employee checks in Section 1 of the I-9. Branches should create a system to remind them when the employee's documents will expire and need to be reverified. Reverification is not necessary for identity (List B) documents. U.S. passports, whether valid or expired, never require reverification, nor do alien registration or permanent resident cards.
- Rehires—A new I-9 does not need to be completed for people rehired within three years of completing a prior I-9. Branches can instead update the prior I-9 by confirming that the employment eligibility document originally presented remains valid. If it does, you can merely record the rehire date in Section 3 of the form. However, if a new version of the I-9 has been issued, the employee must provide documents from the current list of acceptable documents, and then you must complete the current version of the I-9 and retain it with the previously completed I-9. Some branches and state associations find it easier to complete a new I-9 for all rehires.

Auditing and correcting the I-9

Overall, to ensure compliance with the law, you must accurately complete the I-9 at the outset. Mistakes hap-

The contract guarantees assistance for veterans when it is needed most

James D.
Henry

This probably comes as no shock to you, but the federal government is the largest employer of military veterans in the country. Also not so surprisingly, the Postal Service is one of the largest employers of veterans in that federal sector. Historically, veterans make up between 17 and 18 percent of all postal employees. For letter carriers, that percentage may be nearly 20 percent. NALC and the Postal Service are better organizations because of the large number of veterans who carry the mail. Veterans bring skills and training from their military experience to the workplace and we all benefit—civilian and veteran alike.

Unfortunately, veterans are also statistically more likely to have service-connected issues that civilians don't. In 2024, veterans accounted for 13.9 percent of all deaths from suicide among U.S. adults, while veterans constituted 6.2 percent of the U.S. population.

Regardless of the numbers or rates, one veteran suicide is one too many. For that matter, any work- or non-work-related stress or burden that affects the physical or mental well-being of our membership—especially our military veterans—is a stress or burden that you do not need to bear alone.

The USPS/NALC National Agreement provides letter carriers the right and opportunity to use the Employee Assistance Program (EAP) as a means of addressing employees' personal problems. Article 35.1 states, in relevant part:

Section 1. Programs

The Employer and the Union express strong support for programs of self-help. The Employer shall provide and maintain a program which shall encompass the education, identification, referral, guidance [for] employees. ... This program of labor-management cooperation shall support the continuation of the EAP for alcohol, drug abuse, and other family and/or personal problems at the current level. (Emphasis added.)

In other words, NALC negotiated a national program for employee counseling of alcohol or drug abuse as well as for other types of family or personal problems. EAP provides outside trained professionals for free confidential counseling to all postal employees and their family members.

Many employees wrongly believe that EAP is only for dealing with drug and alcohol dependence. This could not be further from the truth. Yes, if drugs and/or alcohol are a problem, EAP is there, but the language clearly states that EAP is equally available for family and personal problems. That is the absolute fact.

Confidentiality is the cornerstone of EAP counseling. EAP counselors are bound by very strict codes of ethics, as well as federal and state laws, requiring that information learned from counseled employees remains private. EAP counselors have licenses and master's degrees in their fields of expertise.

Don't be concerned that participation in EAP will negatively affect your job. The Employee and Labor Relations Manual (ELM) spells that out specifically in Chapter 9, stating:

941.31 Job Security

Participation in EAP is voluntary and will not jeopardize the employee's job security or promotional opportunities.

EAP counselor services are available, through voluntary self-referrals, to letter carriers and their family members. Currently, the national contact number for such self-referrals is 800-EAP4YOU, or 800-327-4968. Additional information is also available at eap4you.com. When you call, a live counselor will answer your call to begin the process.

EAP services are provided through a contract with Lucent Health and employees may be able to schedule up to 12 visits at no cost. If additional counseling is advised or necessary, the EAP counselor can make a referral for additional counseling. This additional referral counseling is at the employee's expense. However, most of the health plans in the Postal Service Health Benefits (PSHB) cover this type of counseling. Depending on which PSHB plan you have, there may be some out-of-pocket expense for these referral visits.

EAP counselors have the responsibility to accept all referrals, schedule face-to-face or telephone interview appointments within a reasonable period from the time the request is made by the employee or family member, and crisis counseling must be available by telephone 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

The rules for scheduling an EAP counseling session are also covered in the ELM, which states:

941.35 Scheduling

The following guidelines apply to scheduling and whether EAP sessions take place on or off the clock:

- An employee's first visit to EAP is on the clock ...unless the employee prefers to visit the EAP unit on his or her own time.
- Subsequent consultations are on the employee's own time.

Important reminders

Nicole
Rhine

Open Season for choosing a health benefit plan is Nov. 10 to Dec. 8, and I encourage all NALC members to consider enrolling in the NALC Health Benefit Plan—the NALC’s own union-run health benefit plan. NALC health benefit representatives and branch officers are reminded that any USPS employee, regardless of bargaining or non-bargaining status, must be a full dues-paying member of the NALC when enrolled in the NALC Health Benefit Plan.

Please note that a common misunderstanding is that a postal employee must already be a member of NALC in order to choose the NALC Health Benefit Plan during Open Season, but that is not the case. Any postal employee can select the NALC Health Benefit Plan during Open Season, however, they must join the NALC in order to maintain their insurance through the NALC Health Benefit Plan.

Under Article 22 of the NALC Constitution, a health benefit plan membership (often referred to as an “associate membership”) applies only to postal retirees who did not maintain their membership in the NALC upon retirement. These enrollees of the NALC Health Benefit Plan pay yearly dues of $36, which are billed directly from Headquarters in the early part of the year.

Branch mergers

Any branch proposing to merge should review Article 2, Section 3 of the NALC Constitution, which sets forth the requirements for affecting a merger of branches. Requests for mergers received at NALC Headquarters are often missing two requirements from both branches wishing to merge: 1) a resolution and 2) a statement of reason(s) for merging. To avoid having a request for a merger returned, please ensure your branch includes all the necessary documentation. More information can be found on the “Secretary-treasurer” page on the NALC website at nalc.org, under the “Union Administration” tab.

Dues rosters, retiree lists and membership rosters

Branch presidents, secretaries and treasurers, as well as state presidents, secretaries and treasurers, have their branch biweekly dues rosters, quarterly branch retiree dues rosters and monthly state dues rosters available to them through the Members Only portal. The rosters can be sorted, downloaded, saved and printed.

Branch secretaries are reminded to review the bi-weekly roster and ensure all dues being deducted are correct. If a change needs to be made, please notify the Membership Department in writing or the branch can opt to enroll in the automatic dues correction program. In addition, members called to active military duty may have their dues suspended upon written request by the branch secretary. When the member returns from active-duty military, please notify the Membership Department so dues deductions may be resumed.

Also available to branch presidents, secretaries and treasurers is a retired member listing for their branch. The list includes all current retired members of the branch and notes which of the retired members are gold card members. Any member showing on the list as “pending 1189” notes that NALC Headquarters has not yet received a Form 1189 from the member.

And finally, branch presidents and secretaries also have the ability to generate a membership roster or an election roster from the Members Only page. The rosters can be sorted, downloaded, saved and printed.

Changes of officers

Branches and state associations are asked to please notify the Office of the Secretary-Treasurer in writing as soon as possible after a change of officers. This can be done via a letter or, for branches, by filling out a “Branch Information Record” card. New officers will not begin to receive their mail from Headquarters until NALC is notified of their names, titles and addresses. NALC’s membership database stores the names of branch and state presidents, secretaries and treasurers, and the information in the database is used for mailings and for access to dues roster information on the Members Only portal as well as the other membership related programs listed above.

National conventions

As a reminder, the 74th Biennial Convention is scheduled for Aug. 3-7, 2026, in Los Angeles, CA; the 75th Biennial Convention is scheduled for July 31-Aug. 4, 2028, in Minneapolis, MN; and the 76th Biennial Convention is scheduled for Aug. 19-23, 2030, in Honolulu, HI.

Veterans Day

Although I am not a veteran, I am profoundly honored that so many of our members are and that I get the opportunity to represent our veterans as a national officer. Let’s all be sure to thank those who serve or have served in our military for the sacrifices they and their families have made.

Talk to your people

Mack I.
Julion

If there is one lesson that we can take away from everything that has transpired this year, particularly with our government, it is how delicate our democracy is. We live in the greatest country in the world not only because of our form of government, but because of the brave men and women who protect us. The freedom and democracy we enjoy comes with a price, and as the saying goes, freedom is not free. There are those who paid the ultimate price and others who volunteered to do so. That's why every chance I get, I take the time to salute those who serve and show my appreciation for their service to our country.

Especially in these uncertain times, we can't take our democracy for granted because, as we see, the enemies to our independence are both foreign and domestic. So, to all our veterans: Thank you, and happy Veterans Day!

As a steward and local branch president, I would often have conversations with my management counterpart in the spirit of cooperation. The goal was to alleviate discipline and the filing of so many grievances. At some point, they would always justify their actions as a response to something the letter carrier isn't doing. They then would seek my assistance in getting my co-workers to comply with their "flavor of the month." They would insist that they are only "doing their job" and then say that if you "talk to your people," a lot of the of the workroom floor confrontations would cease. Usually, they refer to attendance or uniform violations, although sometimes, they may even cite work habits or failure to meet unreasonable expectations. They point out the cost to our employer and our mutual interest in maintaining a profitable and functioning Postal Service.

It is then that I remind them, likewise, that the violation of our contractual provisions by their people also is costly to our employer. In fact, it is more costly than the union time spent protecting our members from unwarranted discipline. I point out the cost to our employer of having to pay penalties and escalating remedies for repetitive contractual violations by their management team.

I would then suggest to them that they need to talk to their people about these violations, which are labeled as "non-compliance" with our national or local agreements. These are not union or letter carriers' rules in our contracts, but rather mutually agreed-upon workplace policies by both the Postal Service and the union. When they don't abide by these rules, they are the ones not complying with the contract. And non-compliance is, and will be, costly to our employer. Sometimes they become very costly because remedies escalate. They don't and won't de-escalate! Just like progressive discipline, the objective is to deter future violations.

In this regard, it is not the union costing the Postal Service money, rather it is self-inflicted by rogue management personnel who are oblivious to the cost. As I have stated before, it doesn't cost the perpetrating supervisor anything to violate the contract because there is no accountability. Our new postmaster general (PMG), David Steiner, will surely at some point notice this financial burden if he hasn't already. I am equally confident that those around him will point the finger at "the money-hungry unions."

My advice for him would be the same as I shared with the previous PMG, Louis DeJoy, and the current deputy PMG, Doug Tulino, when I had the opportunity: "You need to talk to your people!" Postal management can always stop the escalating remedies by not violating the contract. They say coming to work on time in postal uniform isn't hard. I say adhering to our contracts isn't hard either; it is their job!

Finally, as we enter our holiday seasons with a spirit of gratitude, we embrace all that we are thankful for. Despite our challenges, we must continue to enter our "workplace" with thanksgiving and praise. Of course, we are blessed to have our families, but also our ability to provide, because of our jobs and the union that protects us. We all know from where our blessings flow, but we should also acknowledge our retirees, whose shoulders we stand on. The Postal Reform Act of 1970 and the strike that preceded it looms large now. So, a special shout-out and thank you to our retirees.

The picture below is from a group in Gary, IN, of Hammond Branch 580, and their president, Catherine Bodnar. I was honored to attend their event and promised I would put this picture in my article. Happy Thanksgiving to all!

USPS pilot testing and scanner updates

Christopher Jackson

In this month's article, I will share information related to a pilot test recently initiated by the Postal Service aimed at devaluing security keys (Arrow and Modified Arrow Lock [MAL]) as targets for theft. I also will discuss a recent update to the Mobile Delivery Device-Technical Refresh (MDD-TR).

High Security Electronic Lock

In a letter dated Sept. 16, NALC was notified that the Postal Service would be testing the use of a new High Security Electronic Lock (HSEL) to improve employee safety and enhance mail theft prevention efforts. USPS states that HSELs use digital and physical security measures to provide two layers of security. HSEL keys can be programmed to open locks only on a specific route. The keys automatically deactivate at day's end, reducing their value if lost or stolen.

The new HSEL are being tested on relay boxes in select locations within the New York 1 and New York 2 Districts from September through November of this year. HSELs also will be tested on collection boxes and cluster box units in select locations within the California 1 District from October through December, the Illinois 1 District from January through March 2026 and the Georgia District from April through May 2026.

My staff and I were scheduled to meet with officials from USPS headquarters in October at the USPS Engineering Facility in Fairfax, VA, to review this product firsthand. I am very interested to see how this initiative can improve the safety of our members.

MDD-TR Software Version 8.25

Also in September, the Postal Service detailed its latest update to the Mobile Delivery Device-Technical Refresh (MDD-TR), Release 8.25. The latest version includes several enhancements designed to improve functionality of the device. My staff met with postal engineers and USPS Headquarters labor relations representatives in early September to discuss the changes.

One change implemented through this update allows carriers to scan relay box barcodes to record mail pickup, drop-off and relay box status updates regardless of the route entered during login. The Postal Service states that this change allows accurate tracking and reporting associated with relay boxes.

When completing a relay box scan for mail drop-off, a pop-up message will appear, prompting a carrier to select either the "Drop Off" mail or "Pick Up" mail option. Once the drop-off mail option is selected, the scan will be recorded successfully. Completing a relay box scan for mail pickup requires more steps, because a carrier will also need to provide a relay box status update. For example, the scanner will prompt a carrier to identify whether the relay box has been completely cleared of all mail each time the "Pick Up" mail option is selected. When a carrier has scanned a relay box barcode and selected the "Pick Up" mail option, the following pop-up question will appear: "Is the relay box cleared for the day?" Once the carrier answers, either "Yes" or "No," to the question, the scan will be recorded successfully. When we discussed this feature with postal representatives, they explained that relay box barcodes are not currently in use.

Also included in Release 8.25 is an enhancement intended to help carriers with hearing impairment; however, many carriers without this impairment also might find it useful. This update allows carriers to adjust the scanner vibration period during an alert, from a scanner's default setting of 0.5 seconds up to two seconds for each alert. USPS states that the change gives carriers more control over alert notifications and helps to ensure that alerts are more easily noticed. Carriers can access the "Vibration" option in the MDD Settings Menu. Once a carrier sets their vibration preference, it will override the default setting and remain in place until it is manually changed. Postal engineers explained that this update applies only to alerts that were already paired with a vibration setting.

I will continue to share updates regarding the HSEL pilot and MDD-TR devices with the membership as they occur. Be sure to read my article each month and visit nalc.org for the latest information related to City Delivery. As always, my heartfelt thanks go out to all city carriers as you continue to provide excellent service to our customers.

Keeping check on heat injuries

Manuel L.
Peralta Jr.

I have reviewed the number of heat injuries reported to me this year and believe that we have not received all the reports, as requested. I therefore ask that you navigate the NALC web pages, first hovering over “Workplace Issues,” then “Safety and Health” page and then “Extreme Weather.” As you scroll down that page, look for the second “+,” “Enforcing heat safety rules,” and open it. The bottom of that section opens the link to the Initial Heat Injury Report form, or you can type in the following: nalc.org/workplace-issues/body/Heat-Injury-Initial-Report-

Form.pdf and download it. Fill it out and send it to me (the address on the bottom of the form), as well as your national business agent, for follow-up and assistance.

Why do we do this? We want to keep track of where we are having problems, and we want to help our injured members with their Office of Workers’ Compensation Programs (OWCP) claims if necessary.

About 10 years ago, I attended a branch Christmas party in a Southern state and while there, the president of the branch brought my attention to a heat injury suffered earlier that year. Neither the national business agent’s office nor I had been informed of the injury when it happened, and as a result, the injured employee did not receive the necessary assistance early in the process.

The issue brought to my attention was the fact that he was receiving bills from the hospital, demands for payment, and threats that it would be turned over to a collector.

The last thing that our injured employees need to deal with is being billed for medical services caused by an on-the-job injury. As a federal employee, you are covered by OWCP, whose mission statement is:

The Mission of the Office of Workers’ Compensation Programs is to protect the interests of workers who are injured or become ill on the job, their families and their employers by making timely, appropriate, and accurate decisions on claims, providing prompt payment of benefits and helping injured workers return to gainful work as early as is feasible.

Please go to the NALC’s web page, under “Workplace Issues” then “Injured on the Job,” or type in the following address: nalc.org/workplace-issues/injured-on-the-job.

Read through the information found on that page and discover (if you haven’t already) what the NALC has to offer to assist its members. Unlike other obligations that fall under the NALC’s duty of fair representation, assistance involving OWCP claims is a benefit for members only. If you are not a member and you need help, fill out a Form 1187 and join this union for help at no cost.

Remember, you should not be paying for medical treatment that should be covered by OWCP. Further, you should suffer no retaliation from your employer once you have filed an OWCP claim. Reach out for help and do all you can.

On a personal note, I want to take a moment to pay tribute to Art Turner, past president of my branch, a good friend, and a great union leader. I met Art at the beginning of my career and cannot praise him enough. He became our president in 1993 during a very contentious period in my branch’s history. He navigated the waters and steadied the ship like only a Navy veteran could do.

He is now reunited with Jane, the love of his life. Love you both.

Civil service is maxing out

Dan
Toth

The Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS) stopped taking new participants beginning Jan. 1, 1984, pending the creation of the Federal Employees Retirement System (FERS). Come this December, active CSRS employees will be reaching an impressive 41 years and 11 months of service or more (less any deductions to creditable service).

CSRS employees receive a variable rate on each year of service toward their annuity. The first five years are 1.5 percent, the second five years are 1.75 percent, and 2 percent for each additional year. CSRS is also limited to a maximum annuity of 80 percent of their high-3 average salary. If you do the math, it will take a CSRS employee 41 years and 11 months of service to achieve the maximum 80 percent. That means that active CSRS employees will be achieving the maximum annuity this year.

However, there are always some exceptions. It's possible to have less than 41 years and 11 months of creditable service. This could be due to breaks in service or extended periods of leave without pay. Leave without pay in excess of six months within a calendar year is generally not creditable (except for those serving as full-time union officers and electing to pay employee and agency contributions to the retirement fund).

The 80 percent maximum can be exceeded with sick leave. Employees retiring under an immediate/regular retirement receive credit for their unused sick leave toward the annuity calculation (but not toward eligibility), even if they are already at the max. After 41 years of service there could be some substantial sick leave balances that will make a meaningful difference to one's annuity above and beyond the maximum.

Upon reaching 41 years and 11 months of service, there is no change to retirement contributions. The employee will continue to pay 7 percent of their base salary to the retirement fund. However, when the employee does retire, they may receive a refund of any excess retirement contributions (plus interest) when their retirement is processed by the Office of Personnel Management (OPM). OPM will give the retiree the choice of having any excess amount refunded or using it to purchase additional annuity (known as voluntary contributions).

Voluntary contributions can be used to increase the amount of annuity at retirement or as a savings or investment option. To be eligible, the applicant must not owe a deposit for non-deduction of civilian service or a redeposit for refunded retirement deductions. Each $100 in voluntary contributions provides an additional annuity of $7, plus 20 cents for each full year the retiree is over age 55 at the time the annuity begins. If considering an additional annuity, one should calculate the time it takes to break even (the time it takes to earn back the initial cost). This helps you determine whether taking the excess contributions or purchasing an additional annuity is in your best financial interest.

Active CSRS employees with military service who have not yet made a deposit shouldn't assume there is no need to make a deposit even if they've achieved the maximum annuity. It may be beneficial to make the deposit, because it can increase your refunded excess contributions more than the cost of the deposit. Learn more about making a military deposit after 41 years and 11 months from my April 2021 column (available in The Postal Record archives on nalc.org).

Congratulations to all the CSRS letter carriers who have maxed out the annuity. You've earned it.

Electronic retirement applications

Earlier this year, OPM announced that federal agencies would be switching from paper to electronic retirement applications with very little notice, planning or education. Fortunately, the switch for the Postal Service is more complicated and letter carriers did not have to scramble to switch to the new system. After discussions with the Postal Service, the NALC has been notified that prior to a yet-to-be-determined implementation date, we will receive advanced notice and education to ensure a smooth transition. Stay tuned for updates. In the meantime, applicants will continue with the old-fashioned paper method.

Group insurance

James W.
"Jim" Yates

An often-forgotten benefit of being a member of the National Association of Letter Carriers (NALC) is the Group Accidental Death policy (G-001). This insurance policy is administered by the U.S. Letter Carriers Mutual Benefit Association (MBA). The premium for the policy is paid by the NALC, so the coverage is provided free of charge to all members in good standing. This includes all active and retired members, both career and non-career alike. The coverage amount on this policy is $5,000.

Benefits are paid under this group policy in the unfortunate situation when a NALC member dies as a result of an accident. The proceeds are paid in equal shares to the surviving person(s) in the first of the following categories: widow/widower, children, parents, brothers/sisters, executors/administrators. The insured member may elect to designate a beneficiary other than as stated above by filing out the designation of beneficiary form for the Group #G-001 policy, which can be found on our website or a copy can be obtained by calling our office.

This policy remains in force as long as you are a NALC member in good standing. It does not build a cash value. All new members of the NALC are mailed an official notification and certificate of participation in the NALC Group Accidental Death benefit policy as required by law. They should place the Group Insurance Certificate of participation with their other insurance policies.

Additional group accidental death and group term life insurance

Individual NALC branches may purchase additional group accidental death and/or term life insurance for their active members. These plans are also administered by the Mutual Benefit Association and come in many benefit levels to fit into a branch's budget. This additional group coverage only covers active members (career and non-career) of the branch—retired members may not be covered. Currently, MBA administers 170 group policies for 139 branches.

The process for a branch to purchase additional group supplemental accidental death or term life coverage is simple. Once a branch has made the determination to purchase this additional coverage, it should contact

MBA. MBA will send a group supplemental application to be completed by the branch president. The branch will then mail the completed application and a check for the first month's premium payment to the MBA. Coverage will become effective the first day of the following month after MBA has received the application and first month's premium. MBA will bill NALC for the branch's future monthly premiums. NALC Headquarters will deduct the monthly premium amount from the branch's dues reimbursement check and send it to the MBA.

A branch that has elected to purchase additional supplemental group coverage must include every active member of the branch. Additionally, all covered members must be provided the same level of coverage. The following explains the plans' coverage:

- Supplemental accidental death coverage: Branches may elect to cover their active members with additional accidental death coverage. This coverage costs as little as 3 cents per month, per active member, per $1,000 of coverage. Coverage is offered in nine benefit levels. Benefits are paid under this coverage when the member's death is the result of bodily injuries sustained directly by accident and independently of all other causes.
- Supplemental term life insurance: Branches may elect to cover their active members with group term life insurance. This coverage can be purchased through the MBA at low group rates. These rates start at as low as 44 cents per month, per active member, per $1,000 of coverage. Any group term coverage more than $5,000 per month costs only 33 cents for each additional $1,000 of coverage per month, per active member. Coverage is offered in 16 benefit levels. This coverage pays for all causes of death, whether accidental or natural.

The chart below shows examples of the cost to a branch for supplemental accidental and term life coverage. These are only four of the available benefit levels.

Supplemental accidental death		Supplemental term life
Coverage amount	Monthly premium per member	Coverage amount	Monthly premium per member
$1,000	$0.03	$1,000	$0.44
$5,000	$0.15	$5,000	$2.20
$15,000	$0.45	$15,000	$5.50
$20,000	$0.60	$20,000	$7.15

These benefits can help letter carriers provide a secure future for their family members should the unforeseen happen at a low cost to the participating NALC branch.

group insurance or any of the MBA products, please call the MBA at 202-638-4318, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Eastern time. You may also visit our website at nalc.org/mba.

pen, however, and you might later discover errors on these forms. It is good practice to periodically audit and make any necessary corrections to the I-9s. Remember to make all corrections in a different ink (red is suggested) to avoid the appearance of tampering with the timing or other compliance requirements. Some I-9 errors are technical and can be corrected, but others are substantive and could require new I-9s in addition to the original forms. Important: Never backdate a form! Periodic self-audits and corrections can assist employers in demonstrating a good-faith effort to comply with the law in the event of a government audit.

Given that both audits and raids are becoming more commonplace—and the criminal penalties and fines are severe—it is critical that branches and state associations have a robust I-9 compliance practice in place.

c. If a reasonable period of time has elapsed since a management referral or a previously disclosed self-referral, the manager or supervisor may, on a case-by-case basis, approve an additional on-the-clock session.

d. To receive pay for an on-the-clock session, the employee must authorize the EAP provider to disclose his or her attendance to management.

Many veterans are already aware of the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) 24/7 Veterans Crisis Line (800-273-TALK), which provides immediate access to mental health crisis intervention and support. Frankly, some veterans would prefer not to use this VA-sponsored recourse for a variety of reasons. For those, and any other veteran who chooses, NALC has negotiated the alternative EAP services that are available for you.

If you find yourself burdened by events or circumstances, there is no good reason to carry it alone. Take advantage of this opportunity to address your situation with a trained counselor who is ready to listen. Your workplace should never be a place you need or want to avoid, and we need you as a co-worker. Remember, your rights to use EAP are guaranteed without fear of harassment or reprisal, and are strictly confidential.

As a veteran, you stepped up when you saw a need. For all our veterans, NALC hopes we are stepping up for you when you need us.

Open Season

Stephanie Stewart

The Plan's mission is to provide our members accessibility to quality medical care while maintaining a comprehensive benefit package. We pride ourselves on offering excellent benefits with affordable premiums.

As we commence the 2025 Open Season, I want to take some time to talk about the NALC Health Benefit Plan (the Plan). To do this, I will briefly highlight where we started 75 years ago, discuss monumental changes for this year, and then close with the future updates important to our organization and operations. While many of you may know some of the information, it is important to remember where we began and the dream of our forefathers, as this brings us a better understanding of the future.

Past: From the Plan's start in 1950, the National Association of Letter Carriers created a health plan with a simple goal—to unite all letter carriers into the health plan NALC established. The foundation and roots of the Plan has been, and will always be, to provide a health insurance option built by letter carriers for letter carriers.

We have reached many milestones over the years, including a significant increase in the programs and services that members can utilize to better understand and help control various health conditions. We also have expanded the services we offer to make sure that our members have access to the coverage they need as letter carriers.

Early 2025: Moving into January of this year, we became part of a historic event by offering plan options in the Postal Service Health Benefits (PSHB) Program. For the first time in its history, the Plan created policies and insured federal employees and postal employees through separate insurance plans. As most of you know, this change was a key provision in the Postal Service Reform Act of 2022, a bipartisan law that aims to stabilize the financial health and modernization of the U.S. Postal Service.

As a health plan owned by the National Association of Letter Carriers, NALC recognized the creation of the PSHB program as an opportunity to expand our Plan and better serve all letter carriers. Although we faced many challenges throughout the PSHB implementation and the rollover of Plan members into PSHB, the Plan was able to provide guidance and assistance to our members who experienced problems and to complete the PSHB transition. It's also exciting to know that for the first time in our Plan's history, we have become the second-largest fee-for-service carrier in the health benefit program letter carriers can choose from.

Now and the future: This is your year to become part of our plan. Why? There are many reasons to consider the NALC for your health insurance, but there is one thing that sets us apart. We listen to our members, and we continue to make changes based on letter carriers' health needs.

Something you have long been waiting for is the extension of our core business hours. Beginning Nov. 10, we are pleased to announce the implementation of a second customer service shift. The Plan's new hours will be from 8 a.m. through 6 p.m. Eastern time, Monday through Friday.

Website redesign

New and improved, we are happy to introduce the launch of our revamped NALC Health Benefit Plan website. Make sure to check it out.

Experience better access to information, new information architecture, and an updated search function working to get you answers and resources—fast. From organized content and easy user engagement to universal access—meaning that the design works well across all devices (desktop, tablet or smartphone)—you will have a smooth experience no matter how you connect.

2026 Federal Employees Health Benefits (FEHB) Plan changes

Although this does not directly affect letter carriers, or other postal employees, we know that many of you have federal employee friends and family who also support our health plan. Unfortunately, the NALC Health Benefit Plan will not participate in the FEHB Program for the 2026 contract year and will not be offered to FEHB enrollees in 2026. We understand that this is a significant change; however, we simply were no longer able to meet our mission for federal employees.

While this is a notable change, it is important to understand that this will not affect the Postal Service Health Benefits (PSHB) Program and/or postal enrollment options.

We will continue our journey forward, doing what we do best, while returning to our beginning, which started with a focus completely on letter carriers.

We look forward to continued growth and success as we welcome more postal enrollees into our plan during Open Season.

Article 25, Higher Level Assignments—vacant carrier technician positions

Temporarily vacant carrier technician (T-6) positions are not available for opting/hold-down under the provisions of Article 41. Carrier technician positions are considered higher-level assignments, and when temporary vacancies occur, they are filled in accordance with the provisions of Article 25. This month's "Contract Talk" will explain Article 25, higher-level assignments, and the rules for filling temporarily vacant carrier technician assignments.

Article 25, Section 1 of the National Agreement defines higher-level work:

Section 1. Definitions

Higher level work is defined as an assignment to a ranked higher-level position, whether or not such position has been authorized at the installation.

Article 25, Section 4 sets forth rules for filling temporarily vacant, bargaining-unit, higher-level positions, stating:

Section 4. Higher Level Details

Detailing of employees to higher-level bargaining unit work in each craft shall be from those eligible, qualified and available employees in each craft in the immediate work area in which the temporarily vacant higher-level position exists. However, for details of an anticipated duration of one week (five working days within seven calendar days) or longer to those higher-level craft positions enumerated in the craft Article of this Agreement as being permanently filled on the basis of promotion of the senior qualified employee, the senior, qualified, eligible and available employee in the immediate work area in which the temporarily vacant higher-level position exists shall be selected. These rules depend on the duration of the vacancy. For a vacancy of less than five working days, any employee may be selected from those who are eligible, qualified and available in the immediate work area in which the vacancy occurs. For a vacancy of five working days or more, the senior qualified, eligible and available employee in the immediate work area must be selected.

As indicated, these rules depend on the duration of the vacancy. For a vacancy of less than five working days, any employee may be selected from those who are senior, qualified, eligible and available in the immediate work area in which the vacancy occurs. For a vacancy of five working days or more, the senior, qualified, eligible and available volunteer in the immediate work area must be selected. Article 25 is especially beneficial to full-time regular employees who already have their own bid assignments. Since Article 41, Section 2.B restricts opting to part-time flexibles (PTFs), reserve regulars, unassigned regulars and city carrier assistants (CCAs), full-time regular employees with bid assignments cannot opt for vacant routes. However, all qualified letter carriers, including PTFs and full-time regular letter carriers with bid positions, are eligible to apply for higher-level assignments under the provisions of this section.

An employee selected for a higher-level assignment may voluntarily remain on the assignment as long as they remain eligible, qualified and available in the immediate work area. However, unlike the provisions of Article 41 regarding hold-downs, Article 25, Section 4 does not have a duration clause. Therefore, the assignment to higher level does not limit or supersede management's right to assign full-time unassigned regular employees under the provision of Article 41, Section 1.A.7, which could possibly remove the employee from the immediate work area of the available position. Likewise, the assignment to higher level does not limit or supersede a carrier's right to bid, opt or return to their bid position. Employees working a vacant carrier technician assignment under Article 25 may choose to return to their regular assignment any time they wish.

Letter carriers who temporarily fill vacant T-6 positions assume the hours of the vacancy, as provided by the pre-arbitration settlement H8N-3P-C 32705, Jan. 28, 1982 (M-00431 in NALC's Materials Reference System), which states:

Details of anticipated duration of one week (five working days within seven calendar days) or longer to temporarily vacant Carrier Technician (T-6) positions shall be filled per Article 25, 1981 National Agreement. When such temporary details involve a schedule change for the detailed employee, that employee will assume the hours of the vacancy without obligation to the employer for out-of-schedule overtime.

Carriers filling temporarily vacant carrier technician assignments will receive additional compensation equivalent to 2.1 percent of the employee's applicable hourly rate for all paid hours while working the assignment. Pay for work while in a higher-level position is governed by Article 25, Section 2, which provides in relevant part:

An employee who is detailed to higher-level work shall be paid at the higher level for time actually spent on such job. An employee's higher-level rate shall be determined as if promoted to the position.

Additionally, the Step 4 Settlement H4N-5R-C 44093, Feb. 10, 1989 (M-00902), provides that the following management document known as the "Brown Memo" (Nov. 5, 1973, M-00452) is a contractual commitment and remains in effect. The memorandum explains that a replacement employee is entitled to higher-level pay when no employee is detailed under the provisions of Article 25, Section 4:

When a carrier technician (T-6) is absent for an extended period and another employee serves the series of 5 routes assigned to the absent T-6, the replacement employee shall be considered as replacing the T-6, and shall be paid at the T-6 level of pay for the entire time he or she serves those routes, whether or not he or she performs all of the duties of the T-6. When a carrier technician's absence is of sufficiently brief duration so that his replacement does not serve the full series of routes assigned to the absent T-6, the replacement employee is not entitled to the T-6 level of pay. In addition, when a T-6 employee is on extended absence, but different carriers serve the different routes assigned to the T-6, those replacements are not entitled to the T-6 level of pay. The foregoing should be implemented in a straightforward and equitable manner. Thus, for example, an employee who has carried an absent T-6 carrier's routes for four days should not be replaced by another employee on the fifth day merely to avoid paying the replacement higher-level pay.

Management has an obligation to fill temporarily vacant carrier technician positions when requested via Article 25 by a qualified career letter carrier. National Arbitrator Snow held in C-10254, Sept. 10, 1990, that management may not assign different employees on an "as needed" basis to carry a route on a T-6 string when a vacancy of five or more days is involved; instead, such vacancies must be filled according to Article 25. While CCAs are not eligible for higher-level pay under Article 25, CCAs can be administratively assigned by management to vacant carrier technician assignments. When this occurs, the CCA's PS Form 50, Notification of Personnel Action must be revised to reflect that they are assigned to a carrier technician position.

City carriers with questions about Article 25, higher-level pay or filling temporarily vacant carrier technician assignments should contact their shop steward or branch officer.

Staff Reports

The rising cost of health care

Chief of Staff
Kori Blalock Keller

Everything is more expensive—food, housing, higher education, essentials and health care. Kitchen table issues were at the center of the 2024 elections, where voters ultimately aligned with GOP's focus on the subject, while the Democrats focused on social and human rights issues. No matter your views on politics, the result has been a trifecta of Republican control of both houses of Congress, the White House and an ultra-conservative Supreme Court. This has resulted in kitchen table issues, such as health care, coming center stage.

As this article was going to print, the government was on its 27th day of a shutdown, the second longest in our nation's history with no end in sight—even if a short-term funding deal were to miraculously come to fruition—another funding battle is all but guaranteed to follow. At the center of the shutdown was the expiration of Affordable Care Act (ACA) subsidies at the end of 2025 for the millions of Americans purchasing their health insurance on healthcare.gov. As a result, insurance premiums are expected to rise between 18 and 25 percent for those individuals and their families.

While ACA subsidies may not be relevant to the everyday lives of letter carriers, health care costs are rising significantly across the board. In fact, 154 million Americans that have health care coverage through their employer will see rising costs.

In this month's President's Message, President Renfro discusses our own NALC Health Benefit Plan. While it will continue providing the best coverage at the lowest possible premiums for letter carriers and other postal employees, recent regulations from OPM led to the Plan's decision to no longer offer coverage to other federal employees. The Plan remains focused on maintaining excellent benefits without additional financial burden at a time where every dollar matters at home.

The issue of health care—whether its coverage or costs—isn't going away, and the most recent standoff in Congress further illustrates the fragile economic situation in this country. Simply said, everything is expensive and it's coming to a head.

DOHERTY & DONELON SCHOLARSHIPS

Deadline: This form must be returned to NALC Headquarters no later than December 31, 2025.

Eligibility

- Applicant must be the son, daughter or legally adopted child of a letter carrier NALC member in good standing—active, retired or deceased. Stepchildren and grandchildren are eligible if they live with the letter carrier in a regular parent-child relationship.
- Applicant's parent must be a member in good standing of NALC for at least one year prior to making application.
- Applicant must be a high school senior when making application and must submit the form provided at right, signed by the NALC member and an officer of the member's NALC branch. This form must be returned to NALC Headquarters by December 31, 2025.

Requirements

- All applicants must take the Scholastic Assessment Test (SAT) or the American College Test (ACT) in either their junior or senior year. A copy of the official scores from the administering organization must be received at NALC Headquarters by midnight, March 31, 2026. (Computer-generated print-outs of test scores will not be accepted.)
- All biographical questionnaires and secondary school reports must be received at NALC Headquarters by midnight, March 31, 2026.

Regulations

- Scholarship is to be used toward pursuing undergraduate degree at an accredited college of recipient's choice.

- Winners may accept other college scholarship assistance in addition to the NALC award.
- Any change of schools or course of study must be done only with the permission of the NALC Scholarship Committee.
- A transcript of grades must be forwarded to the committee at the end of each school year.
- If winner suffers certified serious illness, scholarship will be held in abeyance for not more than one year.
- If unusual conditions are going to require an interruption in schooling, recipient must state reason(s) in writing to the Scholarship Committee and request that the scholarship be held in abeyance. Request(s) will be reviewed by the Committee and a decision rendered.
- If the NALC member is suspended by their local NALC branch or enters supervision, scholarship will be canceled.

Terms of awards

- The official scholarship judges will award one William C. Doherty Scholarship in each of the five USPS regions and one John T. Donelon Scholarship. Winners are judged on the basis of secondary school records, personal qualifications and test scores. As in the past, the scholarship judges will consist of experienced persons in the educational field. Decisions of the judges will be final.

- Doherty Scholarship awards will be $4,000 per year and the Donelon Scholarship award will be $1,000 per year. Each scholarship is renewable for three consecutive years thereafter, provided the winner maintains satisfactory grades. Award money will be deposited annually with the college. It will be credited to the winner's account to be drawn upon under the rules and regulations that the college has established for handling scholarship funds. Award money is to be used for required college fees, including room and board and transportation fees.
- Children of NALC national officers are not eligible.

In honor of NALC's president from 1941 to 1962, the William C. Doherty Scholarship Fund will again award five $4,000 scholarships to children of members in good standing. The John T. Donelon Scholarship Fund will award one scholarship in honor of Donelon, longtime NALC assistant to the president. Applicants must be high school seniors and must meet all of the following eligibility criteria to be considered.

Sprains, strains and denied claims

Regional Workers' Compensation Assistant Coby Jones

Because of the physical work we do, strains and sprains are common letter carrier injuries.

In general, they are temporary conditions that are expected to get better over time. Often, however, injuries that begin as strains or sprains end up as more serious medical conditions that take more time to heal and can even be permanent. It is common to find cases where the Office of Workers' Compensation Programs (OWCP) has accepted a claim only for strain or sprain, yet the employee's physician has later determined that the original injury caused another or additional serious medical condition. This can happen for a number of reasons:

- The other serious condition is not initially present and develops over time. For example, injuries to the spine may not fully manifest themselves until sometime after the initial injury.
- The other serious condition, while initially present, does not show up in diagnostic testing until a later date. For example, stress fractures often do not show up in X-rays until the body lays down new calcium to repair the fracture.
- The other serious condition may not be initially diagnosed because medical practitioners are conservative in their approach to injury. They do not use expensive or invasive diagnostic procedures such as MRIs until the strain or sprain does not heal as expected.
- There also are cases where the injured worker's physician has diagnosed a strain or sprain and does not perform further diagnostic procedures—even when the strain or sprain does not improve over time.

In all these cases, a failure to expand the accepted claim to include the other serious condition can harm the injured employee later. Consider the following frequently encountered scenario:

A letter carrier injures her back lifting a heavy tray of flats. OWCP accepts her claim for lumbar strain. The physician later discovers two herniated discs, but no attempt is made to expand the claim. The Postal Service provides the carrier with full-time limited duty. Four years later, the USPS rescinds the assignment and sends the injured carrier home. The carrier submits a

CA-7 for compensation based on the withdrawal of limited duty.

OWCP decides to send the injured carrier to a physician for a second opinion as to whether the accepted condition of lumbar strain has resolved itself. The second physician determines that the accepted strain should have healed years earlier. Based on this, OWCP denies compensation and terminates medical benefits.

In order to expand an accepted claim, the medical evidence must be in the form of a detailed narrative medical report, preferably from a board-certified specialist for the claimed condition, containing four key items:

- A written statement by the physician reflecting knowledge of the employee's injury or conditions of employment believed to be the causative factor(s). They should ideally include a written statement from the employee describing the injury or conditions of employment.
- Definitive diagnosis (no impressions) of the other serious health condition that caused the strain or sprain.
- Opinion in definitive terms (no speculation). Was the other serious condition caused, aggravated, accelerated or precipitated by the injury and/or the conditions of employment described by the employee?
- Medical reasons for the opinion that the accepted claim for strain or sprain should be expanded to include the other serious medical condition. This is very important and should include an explanation of how any diagnostic test results led to the diagnosis of the more serious medical condition. The attending physician should also describe the physiological mechanism or biomechanical process by which the claimed factors at work caused or contributed to the more serious condition. Finally, the physician also should provide a detailed case history of the injury and a detailed medical rationale for why the other condition was not initially diagnosed.

If your claim needs expansion, it is important that your physician understand what's outlined above. Most physicians don't focus on the cause of injury. Their concern is with therapeutic care. Because of Federal Employees' Compensation Program provisions, however, OWCP focuses almost entirely on the cause of the claimed condition. This difference in approach can result in claims being denied.

2025 UNI Global Union Post & Logistics World Conference

Research Director
Holly Feldman-
Wiencek

Every four years, UNI Global Union holds its Post and Logistics World Conference, which brings together labor unions that represent postal employees from around the world to share information about challenges they are facing and to collaborate on ways to protect and improve jobs in the postal sector. This year the conference was held in Bangkok, Thailand. While NALC staff did not travel to attend the conference in person this year, there was an option to participate virtually. Over several nights in September, I joined the conference on Zoom.

One message became clear very quickly: Post offices around the world are in financial crisis and unions are hurrying to figure out how to best protect their members as governments take drastic measures to address a fundamental shift in the postal market.

Since 2000, every post office has seen a significant decline in letter mail volumes, and thus a significant decline in the revenue stream that has traditionally funded universal service. Post offices have traditionally operated under universal service obligations (USOs), which are legal mandates that require a post office to offer a baseline level of service to everyone at affordable rates. Strong USOs are what make post offices such strong public services; they ensure equal access to delivery no matter where someone lives. Providing this service is, of course, very expensive, so governments have granted post offices monopolies over letter mail to ensure that the USO can be paid for.

However, as letter volumes have declined due to the increase in electronic communication in the last two decades, post offices are no longer able to cover the cost of providing universal service. While the increase in parcel volumes in more recent years has helped to mitigate this crisis, there is private competition for the delivery of parcels, so post offices must compete with private companies for that business. All over the world, the loss of letter mail and the competition for parcels have left post offices struggling financially and unable to cover the cost of universal service.

Governments and post offices are responding to this situation in a few ways: weakening their once strong USOs, privatizing their postal systems, or diversifying the products and services their post office can offer. While each response is an attempt to address the financial burden of universal service, they represent different perspectives on how to do so. Weakening USOs and privatization typically result in reductions in the quality of service for the public, while diversification typically represents an intent to improve the quality of a public service. I'd like to share a few examples of each that were discussed during the conference.

Strikingly, this conference seemed to mark a sea change. In my nine years of attending UNI postal meetings, I do not remember a time when every country seemed to be reckoning with the same fundamental issue. In the past, while some minor struggles have been shared, the situation in each country has been different. In this case, however, no post office is immune.

“Post offices around the world are in financial crisis and unions are hurrying to figure out how to best protect their members as governments take drastic measures to address a fundamental shift in the postal market.”

Many countries, especially many in Europe, have altered their USOs in recent years, including reducing the frequency of delivery, slowing the speed of delivery, reducing the geographic area that the USO covers, and redefining which products and services are covered by the USO.

Denmark is the most extreme example. Earlier this year, PostNord announced that it would cease all letter delivery by the end of the year because of persistent financial losses. Letter volume in Denmark has dropped by 90 percent since 2000, due to normal electronic substitution and to the Danish government's decision to move to an e-government model in the early 2000s, in which all official interactions with the government are done digitally rather than by mail. PostNord's red collection boxes are being removed from Danish streets and one-third of its workforce is being let go. 3F Post, the labor union that represents PostNord employees, addressed the conference and shared its union's fear that this USO change will lead to the casualization of postal jobs and the end of collective bargaining at PostNord. 3F Post officials warned that it is necessary to find allies and start political negotiations early to build support with enough time to stop these changes in other countries.

In another extreme example, the day after the conference ended the Canadian government announced that Canada Post will begin implementing cost-cutting measures like ending door-to-door delivery and shutting some rural post offices. While the government has stated that these measures are in response to Canada Post being in deep financial trouble, curiously the timing comes before a federal mandate review was set to begin in October to explore potential changes to ensure financial sustainability, and as negotiations with the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) have stalled for the third time in about two years. CUPW, which has been pushing back against any potential service and job cuts, immediately called for a nationwide strike, but it remains to be seen how this issue will be resolved.

Other countries have sought privatization as a solution, transferring the financial burden of universal service from the government to the private sector. While countries usually maintain regulations that determine the minimum level of service, privatization almost always reduces the quality and frequency of service while increasing prices.

In recent years the Indian government indicated it was considering taking steps that could lead to privatizing parts of India Post, such as fragmenting it into functional units—banking, delivery, insurance and others (India Post already offers diverse services)—before selling off certain parts. This news triggered widespread opposition from employees, unions and stakeholders across the country. Postal unions were concerned that privatization would severely damage the core mission of India Post, which is to serve the public, not generate a profit; and would lead to unaffordable rates, reductions in service in unprofitable locations, and loss of job security and collective-bargaining rights. The unions led a campaign and built a strong group of stakeholders around the message “Strengthen, Don’t Sell,” calling on the government to strengthen India Post as a public institution. The Indian government later indicated that it would not pursue implementation of its proposals.

In the UK, workers at Royal Mail are facing the threat of private equity. Royal Mail, which was privatized in 2013, was acquired by EP Group, a Czech private equity firm, this year. The Communication Workers Union (CWU), the union that represents Royal Mail employees, feared that EP Group would break the company up and sell off its assets, extract wealth without adequately investing in the network, cut postal services, attack pay and working conditions, or cut jobs. In response to these threats, CWU sought to secure an agreement with EP Group that would protect its members’ jobs as well as the service the public relies on. CWU was able to achieve such an agreement, including assurances that the “gig economy” employment model would not be used and that the company would not be dismantled. However, Royal Mail’s USO is currently under review and CWU fears that EP Group will use this as an opportunity to cut service in an effort to maximize profits.

In contrast, other countries are seeking to strengthen their postal systems with new revenue from diversified sources. Unlike weakening USOs or privatization, diversification can have positive effects on postal employees and the public.

Ghana, for example, has deliberately positioned Ghana Post as a national platform for social inclusion and has sought to add new services that fill gaps in public service throughout the country. Ghana Post has introduced government services, such as issuing passports and driver’s licenses; and financial services, such as remittance of digital payments, to its post offices. It also has implemented a number of partnerships to make cross-border e-commerce smoother, which allows Ghanaian citizens to more easily participate in that sector of the global economy. These initiatives create new postal jobs and benefit the public by making services more accessible. In a presentation to the conference, a Ghana Post representative noted that “each of these moves has one purpose: to show that the post is not dying, it is adapting.”

Among all these countries making changes to their post offices in response to financial crisis, the future of the U.S. Postal Service seems to hang in the balance. USPS is certainly in financial distress—it lost $9.5 billion last year and is on track to end this year in a similar position—but there have not been whole-government moves toward changing the USO or privatizing postal services, though those ideas have certainly been floated. In fact, in contrast to the reduction in delivery frequency in many other countries, six-day delivery was codified into law in the United States in 2022. That said, I suspect a fight like those seen in Denmark or Canada about significant reductions to the USO, or in India about threats of privatization, is one we soon could be facing at home. This is the value of NALC’s affiliation with UNI Global Union. We can learn from the experiences of other unions and strengthen our own fight to protect letter carrier jobs and universal service.

Q3 Branch Challenge final results are in

We've officially wrapped up the 2025 MDA Summer Camp season. What an incredible summer it was—23 in-person sessions and one virtual session over the past three months. Thanks to your dedication, MDA campers experienced unforgettable moments. You truly created magic that will live in the hearts and memories of hundreds of campers and counselors for years to come.

MDA is thrilled to announce the results of the final Branch Challenge of the year.

During the Q3 Challenge (July 1-Sept. 30), 107 branches raised an incredible $313,274.97 for MDA.

Thank you for going the extra mile to help us one day #DeliverTheCure.

Special shout-out to our top 10 branches from September:

- 1—Branch 385, Youngstown, OH—$9,150
- 2—Branch 46, Western Massachusetts—$8,490.58
- 3—Washington State Association—$7,500
- 4—Branch 9, Minneapolis, MN—$6,100
- 5—Branch 68, Ogden, UT—$6,014.88
- 6—Branch 822, Appleton, WI—$5,582.61
- 7—Branch 1492, Westfield, NJ—$5,300
- 8—Branch 825, Oak Brook, IL—$5,000
- 9—Branch 116, Summit City, IN—$4,850.45
- 10—Branch 14, Louisville, KY—$3,938

And now...the top 10 fundraising branches for Q3 and our Top 3 overall winners:

- 1—Branch 38, New Jersey Merged—$40,398.06
- 2—Branch 9, Minneapolis, MN—$21,371.62
- 3—Branch 284, Erie, PA—$15,308
- 4—Branch 118, Mansfield, OH—$14,050
- 5—Branch 80, Springfield, IL—$11,705
- 6—Branch 2008, Clearwater, FL—$10,004
- 7—Branch 385, Youngstown, OH—$9,150
- 8—Branch 46, Western Massachusetts—$8,490.58
- 9—Branch 74, Saginaw, MI—$8,258
- 10—Branch 358, Northeastern New York—$7,784.83

Our Top 3 overall winners will receive an MDA swag

box as a thank-you. If you won, keep an eye out, as your package will be arriving in the coming weeks. Congratulations!

Quarter 4 is here. From Oct. 1-Dec. 31, there's no official challenge, but it's the perfect time to get those final 2025 donations in for the Honor Roll.

NALC members have already passed the $500,000 mark. Let's keep the momentum rolling and reach $1 million for MDA families by year's end!

If sending in checks, be sure to use the NALC/MDA Allocation Form and send to:

Muscular Dystrophy Association Inc.
Attn: NALC
P.O. Box 7410354
Chicago, IL 60674-0354

Another reminder: Please stop using the old triple-copy NALC/MDA expense forms and only use the allocation form provided online. Also, please mail NALC copies of any receipts or checks along with a copy of the NALC/MDA Allocation Form so that your branch can be properly recognized.

The NALC/MDA Allocation Form and money must be turned in during the same calendar year of the event. Just a reminder: All checks must be dated and received by Dec. 31 at the MDA office to qualify for the NALC Honor Roll for that year. Please send copies postmarked by Dec. 31 to Christina Vela Davidson at the Region 9 office: 1101 Northchase Parkway SE, Suite 3, Marietta, GA 30067.

Connect with MDA: Please contact MDA with questions, for help with fundraising, or to confirm that we have contact information for your branch. You can reach MDA at 312-392-1100 or nalc@mdausa.org.

Well, 2026 rates are out for postal health plans. Many plans went up by double-digit percentages, which is not welcome news. I know many in our ranks are hurting financially, so health care inflation seems like another slap in the face.

Having written that, we are blessed to have health insurance at the level we do. I belong to our union health insurance plan, the NALC High Option plan. When I see my primary care doctor, I pay $25 per visit. When I see a specialist, again, I pay $25. When I go to urgent care, $25. Kind of hard to beat those co-pays, isn't it?

While it is true that there are occupations out there where employees don't pay a dime for health care coverage, there are many more who pay more than we do. A lot more. I recently had someone in my academy class who was an HR specialist for an adjoining county. He told me what active and retired employees pay, and it is not pretty. A retired letter carrier in 2026 will pay $580 monthly for self and family under our union plan. In his county, they pay more than double that. And in many cases, once retired, employers drop their health care. According to one survey, only 21 percent of large employers offered their retirees health insurance in 2023, down from 66 percent in 1988.

And I hope that everyone reading this article understands that Medicare does not pay for everything, and in fact it does not have an out-of-pocket maximum. If you have a $1 million surgery, Medicare pays 80 percent, or $800,000. Without health insurance, who's on the hook for the remaining $200,000? Look in the mirror.

During Open Season, please take a look at the NALC plan. A plan by letter carriers, for letter carriers.

There was this family of 13; two parents and 11 siblings. The oldest of the boys retired with the Air Force. In the early '90s, he went missing. Rumor had it that he died from an overdose and other rumors. Meanwhile, he missed his grandkids' births, family reunions, his parents passing away, and siblings, too. A nurse randomly found a contact to the youngest sibling nearly 30 years later. Told him that his oldest brother wanted to speak with him. He had been housed on base with the Air Force when he allegedly "went missing" then he died a year after contact. Veterans should continue to receive nothing less than the benefits they earned and were used to getting while they served. The U.S. Air Force kept their promise to this oldest of siblings.

The U.S. Postal Service should do the same. It is their responsibility to offer the best benefits to our veterans of any branch in the military. To ease the enforcement of their rights, NALC put together a Veterans Guide that covers the Uniformed Services Employment and Reemployment Rights Act (USERRA), Wounded Warriors Leave (WWL), the Veterans' Preference Act of 1944, retirement credit for military service, and more. It can be found on nalc.org/veterans. Veterans, please connect with NALC's Veteran Group by emailing your contact info to veteransgroup@nalc.org. Letter carriers are privileged to have you among us.

It is also Congress's responsibility to protect veterans exclusively. We now have many veterans who served non-career time in the Postal Service. The Federal Retirement Fairness Act (H.R. 1522) will offer this non-career time to be added to retirement. The framework has already been provided through the USERRA. Push Congress to protect those who protected us! We are our brother's and sister's keeper.

I received horrible news today. A friend of mine, who recently joined my family with the marriage of his son to my niece, was diagnosed with Stage IV renal cancer. He was a chaplain in the National Guard who deployed to the Middle East and was exposed to burn pits. His cancer is one of the many cancers presumed to be caused by exposure to the pits. As a chaplain, he is a man of great faith. I know he'd welcome prayers on his behalf—and the positive thoughts of those who follow a different faith path than he does.

As we contemplate Veterans Day, it is important to remember the sacrifice that many service members continue to make daily, even years after they leave the service. Many choose to go back into public service as civilians. The USPS has more veterans than any other civilian employer in the United States. Some continue to struggle with memories of their service that make day-to-day life a challenge. Self-harm is a serious problem for veterans, and not just combat veterans. The loss of community when someone leaves the service can leave a veteran without the support network that's a natural part of active duty. Some continue to deal with the aftereffects of combat wounds. Some find out, like the chaplain, that their time in combat can rear its ugly head a decade or more after they come home.

Every day, but especially on Veterans Day, please take a moment to give your veteran an extra hug. We never know how many more times we'll be able to hold them and say thank you for what you did for all of us.

(If you are considering self-harm, please remember that the world is better because you are here. Call 988 for professional, confidential and free help 24/7.)

New Jersey

Greetings from Atlantic City, New Jersey, "America's Playground," where the New Jersey State Association of Letter Carriers (NJSALC) recently held its 110th Biennial Convention. New Jersey State President Richard O'Connell Jr., who introduced our guest of honor, NALC President Brian Renfroe, greeted the delegates. President Renfroe updated the delegates on the ongoing attacks federal unions face from the current administration and reminded the delegates that our union will continue to face attacks through budget reconciliation resolutions. President Renfroe explained the current political legislative efforts and contractual preparations for the upcoming bargaining agreement in depth.

Elections were held for the eight state officer positions and nine executive board seats. The officers who were nominated by acclamation are as follows: President Richard O'Connell Jr., First Vice President Nelson Gaskill, Second Vice President Pete Bednarz, Secretary Joseph Rutkoski, Treasurer Jeffery Fox, Director of Education Christine Strasser, Sergeant-At-Arms Keith Hemmings and Director of Retirees Ron Villegas. The executive board were also nominated by acclamation and are as follows: Kory Bates, Edward Fitz, Richard Folmer, Ray Gianotti, Chuck Goushian, Roy Jancio, Ozzie Lecky, William Philips and Bruce Stallworth.

The objective of a state association is to organize and inform members on how and when to contact their elected congressional representatives who support legislation on behalf of the NALC. I am confident the NJSALC will not waver from this objective.

Information on state scholarships will be announced in the next issue of the Garden State Letter Carrier. Have a blessed and happy Thanksgiving!

Hello, mail messengers!
Is it OK for legislative liaison officers to meet with a potential candidate? Pictured above with State Association President Anthony Lauderdale and Liaison Officer James Brown is Democratic candidate Aftyn Behn of Nashville, who is running for the U.S. House of Representatives to succeed Rep. Mark Green (R), who has elected to resign his position. She supports our legislative agenda and is opposed to privatization.

Should we support potential candidates who are campaigning for congressional positions? Yes. As union members, carriers should reach out and contact all candidates who are campaigning for congressional positions. It is great to make first contact with the candidate who is running to represent you and your family.

How do we do this? First, visit your representative's website to find contact information for their local and Washington, DC, offices. Be flexible: Their schedules are busy and so is your work schedule. Do your request in writing; email is preferred. Confirm you are a constituent, the purpose of the meeting and who will be attending. Prior to your visit, do your homework and familiarize yourself with their recent votes, interests, and positions on our issues. Organize yourself and prepare a brief outline of what you want to discuss and support yourself with supporting documentation. Download fact sheets from the NALC website and leave them with copies of what you discussed. Dress up, introduce yourself and why you are there. Listen to them and allow them to ask questions. Take notes and record important points and commitments for follow-up. Afterward, send a thank-you note. If they refuse to meet with you, find them on Facebook and attend their town hall meeting. Overall, be polite and persistent.

Questions? Ask your president.

Texas

In June, Texas legislators initiated the redistricting of existing state districts with the aim of providing the Republican Party an advantage in the upcoming midterm elections. In August, the Texas House approved a new congressional map that affects several congressional representatives—Marc Veasey, Greg Casar, Lloyd Doggett, Julie Johnson and Al Green—all of whom are friends and supporters of letter carriers in Texas. A hearing took place in El Paso on Oct. 1. The three-judge panel will listen to lawmakers to determine whether the new district map violated the state constitution. At this time, no decision has been reached. The Texas State Association of Letter Carriers (TSALC) is prepared to respond should any changes arise and will keep Texas letter carriers informed regarding developments in the situation.

H.R. 1065, the Protect Our Letter Carriers Act, currently has 147 co-sponsors, including 10 representatives from Texas. Rep. Jasmine Crockett is one of the most recent members to support the bill, and we appreciate her endorsement. Also, H.R. 1522, the Federal Retirement Fairness Act, stands the same with 108 co-sponsors, including seven from Texas. Texas consists of 38 Congressional Districts and currently has 17 representatives on H.R. 1065 and H.R. 1522. There remains substantial work ahead. You are encouraged to reach out to your district representative and persuade them to add their support.

In solidarity—

Everett Wyllie

I want to clarify some recent confusion regarding the Nalcrest waitlist for members who have submitted applications to reside at Nalcrest.

The list is used to determine seniority order for potential new Nalcrest residents based on the date that we received the application and deposits. In the past, when the senior applicant was not ready to make the move to Nalcrest, the policy was that they were placed at the bottom of the waitlist. This practice worked great when there was a short waitlist. However, with a waitlist now approaching 400, being moved to the bottom of the waitlist could have an adverse effect on the NALC concept of seniority. Therefore, we have changed the policy to preserve our concept of seniority.

Applicants will remain in their place on the seniority waitlist. However, now if they are not ready to move when called, they will be asked to provide an approximate month and year when they may be ready. The new month and year will be noted next to their name on the waitlist. They will continue to be passed over by those below them on the list until that month and year they provided. At that time, they will be asked again if they are ready to move in. The waitlist has been adjusted by seniority of the date the application and deposits were received. Those who call to check their place on the list may find that their number has "dropped" on the list. However, we are finding in most cases that this does not delay their wait to move in, because not only do they continue to move up the list as apartments become available, but also the majority of those ahead of them are not ready to move in. As of Oct. 5, the waitlist was at 385. Don't hesitate—get your apps in!

Nalcrest update: All hurricane damaged roofs have been replaced or repaired. Statewide Roofing and Sheet Metal did a wonderful job, working expeditiously and neatly throughout the property.

The painting of the buildings continues on the weekends. We thank those branches who have already participated in the "Adopt-a-Building" program, and there is still time for your branch to donate.

The new restaurant in Town Center, Holy Cannoli, is now open and is off to a great start. We wish our new tenant much success.

Many of our seasonal Nalcrest residents should all be returning this month; we welcome all our snowbirds back to paradise.

Honor Roll

NALC recognizes its brothers and sisters for their long-term membership

NALC members who have completed 50 years of membership in NALC are awarded a Life Membership Gold Card that entitles them to all privileges of membership in NALC without payment of dues. To receive a gold card and 50-year lapel pin, the branch secretary must write to the NALC secretary-treasurer and request the award for the member. This is in accordance with Article 2, Section 5 (a) of the NALC Constitution.

Additionally, the national secretary-treasurer's office handles branch requests for lapel pins. Accordingly, the secretary-treasurer's office can only provide suitable lapel pins when receiving proper notification by the branch secretary in the year when a member is to complete the following number of years as a member: 25 years, 30 years, 35 years, 40 years, 45 years, 50 years, 55 years, 60 years and 65 years. Special plaques are available for members who complete 70 years and 75 years. This is also per Article 2 of the NALC Constitution.

All requests must come from the branch secretary. Longtime members are encouraged to inform their branches when they reach a longevity benchmark.

Below is a list of those NALC members who have received an award in the past month:

At the October branch meeting, a vote was taken on the proposed bylaw change that was mailed to every member. The bylaw change proposed to allow members to attend the branch meetings by video, and this would count as being physically in attendance at the meeting. The new bylaw applies to every member, even those who may live next door to the union hall. After much discussion, the proposed bylaw passed 12-8.

The branch will mail out a notice of this new bylaw to every retiree, since there are nearly a third who live out of state. You'll be able to log into the meeting using the Zoom app. The branch will also accommodate those who just want to listen by phone if you wish. And by virtue of logging into the meeting, you'll be eligible for all the door prizes (currently there are three drawn at each meeting: 1) $1,000, 2) $150, 3) $50 to the members in attendance at the meeting). You'll be able to participate just as if you were in the room. The branch will have a member running the Zoom program and will be responsible for those on a phone call to ensure their votes and participation are recorded accordingly.

As we get close to the end of the year, many federal workers decide to retire, and the length of time it'll take to be finalized will undoubtedly be much longer. Usually, OPM receives approximately 14,000 retirement applications at the end of the year, which is double the normal monthly amount. So, if you're going to retire at the end of this year, be prepared for a lengthy wait for your claim to be finalized.

And it's Open Season for health, dental and vision insurance. If you need help with Open Season, contact the branch.

While my fellow branch members were rallying against privatization in New Jersey, I decided to join my local Branch 2502 in Las Vegas in its fight against privatization. On a beautiful day, I gathered with about 100 of their members, joined by two councilwomen and a mayor, and covered by two local news channels.

On this day, NALC was well represented, and we will continue to fight going forward. Thank you for letting me join your branch for the day.

Attend union meetings.

There are so many memories from my 25 years as a letter carrier. I went through some old files and came across a list of experiences I want to include in my "memoir." Since I'm still way too active to sit down and write one, I thought I'd share a few of the more entertaining ones. Humor is what gets us through our days sometimes.

One of my first routes was a park-and-loop in an older residential neighborhood. Mailboxes on doors, or through the wall. One particular house had a dog who used to wait inside by the slot every day and make noise like he was shredding the mail I pushed through. I liked to tease him and not release it when I delivered, wondering why these people would allow their dog to tear up their mail every day. One Saturday morning surprised me when I did this and a voice commanded, "Let go of the mail."

When badges were first introduced, I went a year without one. Someone took my photo, but no badge ever resulted. At weekly stand-up talks, the supervisor would ask if everyone has their badge, and I'd raise my hand and say no. It showed up in some desk they were clearing out in another office.

I'm sharing these stories to let active carriers know that there is a lot of life in a career as a "mailman." Every day is different, but when it ends, you may have some things to smile about. Hang in there; retirement is great!

Finally, this month we celebrate veterans who made sacrifices to protect our freedoms and also our right to vote. Make sure you exercise your right to express your views, and thank a vet.

In unity—

On a routine basis, the National Association of Letter Carriers Branch 120 takes this opportunity to announce our regular monthly retiree breakfast for Branch 120 union member retirees, which takes place the third Wednesday of every month during the hours of 8 to 10 a.m. at the Hawthorne Diner, located at 112 Goffle Road in Hawthorne.

This tradition was started over 50 years ago by our then-strike president, Murray Ross. The memory of President Ross lives on well after his passing due to his strength in making our union stronger. There are many different reasons why this monthly event takes place. Solidarity, retiree information, and up-to-date news on how to keep our benefits take place, and who to see or write to in order to remain strong, etc. Although President Ross is no longer physically with us, his memory of what it takes to be a union member and to build unions remains with us, no matter how many years go by.

We invite all our Branch 120 retired members to attempt to make this event, if not on a regular basis, then on a periodic basis to keep Branch 120 informed of your status, to keep you updated regarding retirement, and to assist our retirees as much as possible when and if the need arises.

I recently had the honor of recognizing one of our letter carriers. On a September morning at the Henry Johnson Carrier Annex, alongside NBA Mark Camilli, I presented letter carrier Jason Danliers with a NALC Hero pin for his extraordinary actions while on duty.

In August, Jason was finishing his route when a young girl ran to his truck in panic. Her father was not breathing. Jason rushed inside, where the family's German Shepherd initially blocked the doorway. Once the children corralled the dog, Jason began CPR, guided only by a 911 dispatcher and the steady beat of "Stayin' Alive." He performed chest compressions and rescue breaths until help arrived.

Jason later downplayed his role, saying, "I just did what anyone should do." But for one Albany family, his courage and composure meant everything. Medical experts note that immediate bystander CPR can double or triple survival chances, meaning Jason's quick action quite literally gave this family hope.

Jason, a letter carrier for almost six years, is known as a humble and quiet co-worker. His story reminds us of the vital role letter carriers play in our communities, whether that's checking on an elderly customer, noticing danger, or stepping up in a crisis.

That same community spirit was on display at our recent retiree brunch on Sept. 7. Over the years, the brunch has transformed from a formal event into a warm family reunion. Our retirees' wisdom, humor and camaraderie continue to inspire us, and I encourage every active member to attend next year's gathering on the first Sunday after Labor Day.

Whether it's a carrier like Jason springing into action or retirees passing down lessons of service, one truth remains clear: The NALC is more than a union—we are part of the neighborhoods we serve each day.

Branch 545 installed new officers on Oct. 5. We sincerely thank all our outgoing officers for your service to our branch and our union, and we wish all the best to the new officers who have stepped up to lead our branch for the next three years.

A huge thank-you goes to our veterans on Veterans Day, Nov. 11. Your sacrifice and service to our country will not be forgotten. And later in November, we can all celebrate the blessings we enjoy on Thanksgiving.

We would like to congratulate our fellow carrier, Steven Wrinn, on his recent retirement. Steven was assigned to our Downtown station with 39 years of service. We thank you for your service and want to wish you the best in the next chapter of your life.

The union leadership would like to let all of our members know that we are continuing with our in-person meetings. We are holding our meetings on the third Tuesday of every month for anyone who is interested in attending. Food will be provided at the meeting for those who are able to attend. We look forward to seeing all of our members who are able to make it out. Also, if anyone is interested in participating in our local union in any capacity, please contact our local union office or speak with the union steward in your office.

Hello, Queen City. My name is November, and this is the month with two holidays, one which we celebrate the veterans out in the world, and the other, in my opinion, is the greatest of them all, Thanksgiving.

First off, thank you to all the veterans out there in Carrier Land. First you sacrificed years in the service, possibly being away from the ones you love, sometimes for months on end. Your postal career, I'm sure for some, has had some very long days, months and years over its time. Later in the month we celebrate Thanksgiving with food and family with some football thrown in—Go Pack Go!

Then sometime this month we expect mail and packages to really pick up, I hope, because it really seems First-Class Mail is getting less and less. I put some of this blame on us, as individuals who rely on this for our job. How many carriers actually use a stamp or stamps every month? How many younger carriers actually know what a stamp is, or how it is used? Does the younger generation even know how to write out a check to pay a bill, put it in an envelope, put a stamp on it and put it in the fresh mail at work? Heck, you could even put your card info on the form and mail it.

I have been mailing bills for a very long time. For the most part, it doesn't take very long for it to go through the system. If every person who works for the Post Office did their part in using the mail every month for different bills and cards, I think it would really help us out. I challenge every one of us to do our part every month with this, please.

Meetings are every second Thursday of the month in Forest Park.

In solidarity!

Chris Rought, Branch 43

Mahalo. Gracias. Dziekuje. Merci. Takk. Bedankt. Thank you.

Regardless of the language, gratitude can be expressed for a simple act of kindness such as opening a door for someone, helping someone in need, and for serving in the United States military. In the month of November, we have two dates that are set aside that exemplify those words of appreciation, Veterans Day and Thanksgiving. The rank and file of the NALC is filled with many who have served.

Like many other NALC branches, we set time aside at our November branch meeting to honor these men and women, recognizing not just their sacrifice but that of their loved ones. There is a collective sense of pride as we recognize these individuals for their service and acknowledge those who are actively serving while employed by the USPS. These men and women bring that same commitment and dedication to service while wearing the Postal Blue.

The second day of gratitude this month literally is expressed in its title, Thanksgiving. It's a holiday that brings families together to enjoy a meal and to reflect on one's blessings. We should also take this opportunity to consider what we can do in our communities to reach out to the less fortunate, donating a precious commodity, time.

Also be mindful of those around you in the workplace as the longer hours, changes in weather, and unrealistic expectations by management can increase physical and emotional stress. This is the time to advise and mentor your fellow carriers who are experiencing their first holiday season, for in union there is strength.

The officers and members of Cascade Branch 196 extend their sincere appreciation to Region 11 National Business Agent Mark Camilli, RAA Mike Brim and NALC Director of Retired Members Dan Toth, as well as all participating NALC branches for their support of the Branch 196 Second Annual MDA Golf Outing. We are grateful to the numerous Ohio and Upstate New York branches, local businesses and individuals who generously sponsored golf holes.

As a result of these collective efforts, the Branch 196 MDA Fund has now exceeded $7,000. Thank you for your continued support, and we look forward to future MDA fundraising initiatives.

William L. Rolfe, Branch 196

As far back as 1981 there has been a collective-bargaining agreement between the USPS and the NALC. It was an agreement that both parties agreed to and were to follow. We have agreements that were settled either through negotiations or through binding arbitration. In talking to stewards and presidents within my district, I have found out that there are certain postmasters, station managers and supervisors who have failed to read the memo that there is a contract that is to be adhered to by management and labor.

I have been told that some supervisors are not allowing carriers to see their stewards, won't give them PS Forms 3996s, won't honor stewards' requests for documentations, won't honor Step B decisions telling them to comply with Articles 17 and 31, and a postmaster telling the branch president that they will not post a route, but instead revert the route without going through the proper procedures. I find this appalling and it burns me up.

The National Agreement and JCAM are our bible that has been agreed to by the USPS and the NALC. We as a union must keep management in their place and make them abide by the contract. I encourage all presidents and stewards to follow the National Agreement and JCAM and make management do the same. It is important that we protect our members, and I encourage you to ensure that their rights are protected. Make management treat us with dignity and respect, and if they don't, file! on them. If they violate the contract, file! Sooner or later—hopefully sooner—they will understand that there is a contract that they must follow.

Branch 205 has been fundraising for the NALC's official charity, the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Thanks to a generous offer from the ownership of the 701 Eatery in Fargo, branch members along with some family members bussed tables one evening and raised $341 for MDA. It was the most enjoyable evening to help our charity, besides socializing with fellow brothers, sisters, and two of our carriers' most adorable baby boy.

Branch 205 is currently underway with another fundraiser, Choose your Destination, for MDA. We are selling 100 tickets for $100 each. The winner will select one of four trips. They are Paradise in Cabo, Tuscan Retreat, Enchanting Sedona Getaway, or Bourbon Bliss in Kentucky. The drawing will be held at our holiday party in December, and you do not need to be present to win. Reach out to a member or branch officers if you'd like more details.

Veterans Day acknowledges the bravery, dedication and sacrifices of those who served in the military, whether during wartime or peacetime. Veterans Day is a day of respect, remembrance and appreciation for those who wore the uniform. It is not only a tribute to the past, but also a commitment to supporting veterans today and into the future. Thank you, veterans, for your service.

Thanksgiving is often traced back to 1621, when the Pilgrims shared a harvest meal with the Wampanoag Native Americans. It was a celebration of survival and gratitude after a difficult first year in the New World. Thanksgiving became a national holiday in 1863, when President Abraham Lincoln proclaimed it during the Civil War, calling for a day of "thanksgiving and praise." Thanksgiving is a time to reflect on what we're thankful for—family, health, and life's blessings.

There was a time when telling and reporting the truth was a noble thing. In courts of law, grievances, videos and photographs all prove what really happens. It is good to know the truth. "Transparency" tells the truth.

Yet, many on the right fight tooth and nail to avoid it. Why? As far back as the Vietnam War, they would complain about war reports on the evening news. They could not defeat the truth. So, they started their own news networks, radio stations. They would—and still do—attack, attack and attack the truth.

They are falsely reporting what they want to hear, rather than the truth. Labeling Republican sex offenders, racists and corrupt traitors as victims, patriots and idols.

Do not even mention worker rights, unions and health care to them. They will crawl out of their skin. Only if it helps them will they listen. Preaching family value, then defending Republican racists, known child sexual abusers and traitors. Can you imagine their idea of a perfect world? The truth is the truth. Denying it is not family value. But, it is hypocrisy.

We have our work cut out for us. Yes! We must never stop telling, reporting the truth. That is democracy itself. They do not like that either.

Stay united, when management values lying snitches over dedicated union brothers and sisters. Those in the White House will not help when it comes to telling the truth.

As we head into the winter months and approach the time change, please be prepared for work in the dark. Unfortunately, arbitrators have consistently ruled that darkness alone is not dangerous. However, darkness combined with other factors can create a dangerous proposition. During these dark evenings, please ensure that you take all necessary precautions to stay safe. Our safety is always the highest priority.

Given the earlier setting sun in combination with the increasing parcel volume as we ramp up toward the holiday season, you may find yourself in need of additional time to fulfill the duties of your assignment. If you believe you will need overtime to complete your assignment, you should inform the supervisor of your opinion and complete a PS Form 3996.

If management does not believe you'll need additional assistance, do not get angry. Simply assure them that you will do your best. If later in the day you determine you will still need the overtime you requested, send a message via RIMS on your scanner or call the office to inform management. This should typically be done two hours before you will be at your eight-hour mark. Management must decide how to handle the situation. They should either direct you to deliver the mail or to bring the mail back to the office. If you are instructed to return to the office, ensure that you request PS Form 1571 and complete it. This will protect you, as it shows that you were approved by management to curtail the mail.

Always remember, it is management's job to make decisions, but that doesn't give them the right to belittle us. If management attempts to bully, harass or intimidate you, please request a steward. We are all entitled to a harmonious workplace.

Seventeen delegates from Branch 30 recently attended the 123rd Missouri state convention in September. With the MDA golf tournament and an exhilarating trivia night in the books, it was time to get down to business. Contract training consisted of Timeliness, Information & Stewards Time Requests, Limited Duty, Special Inspections, a few bylaw changes and state officer elections.

Present were NALC Disaster Relief Fund President Christina Vela Davidson of Durham Branch 382, Region 9 NBA Eddie Davidson, and our speaker, NALC Director of Safety and Health Manny Peralta. I would not be surprised if Manny's DNA wasn't found in Prevagen.

As Manny discussed the state's responsibility for legislative efforts, we soon discovered that privatization and retirement nullification began in the 1980s with Ronald Reagan and OMB Director James Miller III. Yet it was through the efforts of then-NALC President Vince Sombrotto and other federal-sector union efforts that led to the creation of FERS and the Thrift Savings Plan; Newt Gingrich's "Contract for America" versus President Clinton's approval of FMLA; NALC President Bill Young's battles over contracting out mail deliveries; and now Project 2025.

He also told us how Independence carrier John Watzlawick's heat-related death in 2012 and the NALC's fight got USPS and OSHA to recognize heat as a safety hazard, and about training record falsification and way too many incidents of carriers injured, maimed and killed working from the rear of their vehicles.

Mentioning the e-Activist Network caused LPO Anthony Mitchell to reminisce about the Gimme 5 campaign ($5 per pay period) to help support the LCPF. Anita Franklin, NW District Representative and Terry Myers, Kansas City representative, were both reelected by acclamation. How you vote affects who is going to support you; the benefits you have, what you keep; the benefits you lose; and the ones coming under attack. Do your part or else.

Hello, brothers and sisters of the satchel! We all know what tornadoes are and how they have an impact on a community. Well, recently a tornado—aka Chapter 2, M-39 Handbook—swept through Knoxville and did substantial damage to a few stations by increasing the homelessness of unassigned regulars.

How did this happen? Normally, it is the result of "runners," or carriers who like to skip their lunches and 10-minute breaks. Some would argue that the loss of the Amazon contract is the culprit. The history of losing a route lean more to the runner than to Amazon, not performing his duties in accordance with the M-41 Handbook or their AM SOP.

An unassigned regular does not hold a duty position with a set duty. Granted, they're entitled to a 40-hour workweek, which affects work hours of CCAs and PTFs. Our part-timers have bills to pay and families to take care of. They are the ones who must suffer because of carrier route mismanagement.

A mismanaged route will be a victim to a tornado à la the infamous "six-week average" when their station is up for a route inspection. So, when a route is lost at a station, an unassigned regular pops up on the radar. What is the impact? CCA/PTF hours drop, which means they'll have to get on the high horse and find work at other stations. Even at that other station, they'll have to run and burn their lunch hour and break to appease management to ask for them to return and work an empty route.

So, it's a cycle, but the bottom line now and down the road to the next route inspection is for everyone to carry their route in accordance with the M-41 Handbook.

Marrero, Louisiana

On Sept. 24, Marrero City letter carrier Brother Eddie White Jr. was honored with a certificate of appreciation, a service pin, and a service award commemorating his remarkable 45 years of service with the U.S. Postal Service.

The presentation was made by Marrero Postmaster Chadwick Taylor, Marrero Supervisor Synedra Darenbourg, and Branch 4323 President Freddie Warren, recognizing Eddie's outstanding dedication and professionalism.

Everyone in Marrero seems to know Eddie. It's not unusual for carriers on their routes to hear a friendly question from customers: "Is Eddie White still delivering mail?" The answer, happily, is yes, and that familiar name always brings a smile. Customers, co-workers and supervisors alike agree that Eddie is the best.

Eddie began his postal career in 1979 at age 25, when a First-Class stamp was only 15 cents. Over four and a half decades, he has truly "seen it all" while delivering the mail: new neighborhoods, new technology, and most memorably, a rare January snow blizzard this year, something almost unheard of in Louisiana. Through it all, his steady presence and friendly manner have made him a beloved figure in the community.

NALC Branch 4323 is proud to celebrate Eddie White Jr.'s milestone and the example he sets for carriers everywhere. His commitment to excellence shows what it means to serve the public with dedication, day in and day out.

Congratulations, Eddie, on 45 outstanding years, and here's to many more safe and happy deliveries.

Branch 53 has been affiliated with the North Florida Central Labor Council since 2010. Last month, the president of the CLC passed away unexpectedly. Former Branch President Maceo George has been very active as a delegate to the North Florida Central Labor Council, and he most recently held the position of first vice president. At the NFCLC October monthly meeting, the members elected Maceo to the office of president. He is dedicated to improving the rights and benefits to all working families. He has some big shoes to fill.

For years since Maceo retired, he has been an activist and member of several organizations such as NAACP, A. Philip Randolph Institute, the Democratic Black Caucus and the Duval County Democratic Party. He has spent many hours in front of the city council appealing for workers' and civil rights. Maceo currently serves as one of the Florida letter carrier congressional liaisons, and he does the planning for the annual Veterans Day and MLK Day parades in Jacksonville. I know that he will take on the responsibility, and we say congratulations, Maceo.

At the recent FSALC state convention, Frank Marinacci was reelected to the position of chairman of District 4. Congratulations to him also!

Branch 53 is once again participating in this year's Veterans Day parade. We wish all veterans and their families a great day, and thank you for all you do and sacrifice for this country.

To anyone planning to attend the November branch meeting: Don't forget that it will occur a week earlier than normal because of Thanksgiving and will be held on Nov. 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the branch hall.

A few points of interest around 84 this month:

"Return to Work" packets are still hot and heavy around the Pittsburgh Area, just as they were last month. If management gives you a form with contractual language and a place to sign, do not sign it.

If you have any sort of work restriction and management is repeatedly asking for updated documentation, your only contractual obligation is to update them "regularly." That could mean your regular yearly checkup, if that's when you typically see your doctor.

There also are instances of improper instruction happening regarding the geolocation of scanning parcels and/or sample requests. You should not be backtracking for any of these scans. That being said, the ironclad rule of "obey now, grieve later" still applies. There was a tremendous arbitration decision out of Buffalo regarding this "geofence," so notify your steward or the branch hall if this or any of the preceding situations are taking place in your installation. This also applies if management is questioning telematics such as seat belt usage.

Lastly, have a wonderful Thanksgiving! Do one thing for me: When you are giving thanks for your family, friends and gainful employment, reflect on your stewards, the thankless work that they perform, and those who have perhaps assisted you by witnessing something or writing a statement on your behalf. Think about how you might repay that equity in the future. That, and how sluggish you'll be on Friday.

Salutations—

I'm going to address the situation happening at the Portland Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) facility. It is sure to have changed 100 times before this is in ink, but this is where we are now in mid-October.

This week we had a visit from Homeland Security Secretary Kristi Noem. She met with our governor, mayor and police chief. Then she went back to D.C. and continued the lying that President Trump started when he called Portland "war-ravaged" and "burning to the ground." Noem reported to Trump: "They are all lying, and uh, disingenuous and dishonest people." Oregon Gov. Tina Kotek responded, "It is clear from Secretary Noem's continued false narrative about what's happening in Portland that the Trump administration has no interest in the facts, no interest in public safety, and that we cannot take them at their word."

Temporary restraining orders are in place to stop Trump from deploying National Guard troops. After a judge ruled that he couldn't use Oregon's National Guard, he ordered California and Texas troops who were already federalized. We are waiting to hear the decision from the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals regarding Trump's request for a stay, which would allow him to resume mobilizing Oregon National Guard troops. Our local elected officials agree that this is unnecessary and dangerous to our citizens and our troops.

The protests around the ICE facility are taking place in a one-block radius. On most days, the protesters are a very small group, often outnumbered by the press. We are not on fire. We have not been taken over by anarchists. A handful of citizens are practicing their First Amendment rights. The name-calling and lying coming out of the White House are shameful and embarrassing. Now he's inciting violence to punish innocent Americans.

The Executive Council has begun preparations and subcommittee meetings for the next round of collective bargaining. Negotiations are going to start this upcoming February. Each subcommittee will meet weekly over the next several months. As their work progresses, additional information from members will be available for their consideration.

Firstly, a Rank-and-File Bargaining Committee of 30 letter carriers met for several days in mid-September. There are three subgroups: branch leaders, experienced members in contract enforcement, and newer members. They will go through a similar review process to that of the Executive Council bargaining subcommittees and offer valuable input on potential proposals from their respective perspectives. In addition to these committees, the NALC will make surveys available to all members nationwide this fall. Some members may even have received a text message about that survey.

Otherwise, safety meetings have resumed here in Providence this quarter. If you have any safety concerns, please let your steward know. Lastly, I am writing to provide an update on Nick Nanni's status. For those who don't remember, Nick was involved in a serious motorcycle accident in June on the interstate. Nick has had multiple surgeries and hospital stays and is now starting to be able to walk again. Our members very generously donated money to him and attended a fundraiser to help with his time out of work and medical expenses. He also has a leave donation account set up, for which the shop stewards should have information about for those interested in donating.

A flat-bed truck was selling hay bales. There was one hay bale left. So, would that be considered the last straw?

The New Employee Experience, Retention and Mentoring Program (NEERP) explained in last month's issue of the PR piqued my interest. Probably will take a minute to fully implement and get off the ground; however, it's a good first step to keep those newly hired carriers around. Many of the issues that new hires go through today are oddly familiar with generations that went before them. Every generation muddles through their own experiences and learns quickly how to carry mail efficiently. Bottom line: Introduce yourself. New hires will then see a familiar face every day and likely be more eager to engage and ask questions.

The USPS is dramatically different these days. More tech-driven, numbers rule the clipboards, and probably not a program out there or waiting to be thought of that management hasn't already tried out at some point. Anything to make the carrier go faster, and nothing to actually make a carrier more efficient. Carriers truly rule the roost at their jobs and are self-made efficiency and adaptability experts.

Part of the NEERP requires new CCAs and PTFs a guaranteed day off during the week. Good plan if you can keep it. Wait till the OTDLers are maxed out with fresh snow on the ground. Who will be the first to un-guarantee that day off and inform the new hire to come on in?

Pretty sure the thinkers and movers at L'Enfant Plaza would like nothing better than an AI-generated carrier(s) with programmable circuit boards with a QR code customers can scan for questions rather than calling and hearing that "busy" signal at the P.O.

We just received another batch of 15 Pre-arbs that paid our members $20,038. These were all signed by RAA Tonya Detrick. Thank you so much, Tonya!

This is on top of the huge wins we wrote about last month. I stated that I want to thank union arbitration advocates Jeannine Gasper, Julie Mitchell and Cindy Connors, and RAAs Tonya Detrick and Hugh McElroy, along with our hardworking shop stewards for winning about $50,000 for our members in the last several months! This includes settlements from Pre-arb, Informal and Formal A, as well as arbitration decisions. Also, the above union officials have knocked out the last 100 disciplinary actions or drastically reduced the discipline issued by overzealous management. This is a great team effort!

I also wrote in my October scribe article, When will Congress pass a law that prohibits masked ICE agents and other Trump thugs from attacking people and detaining persons with no identification? How does one know they are not being kidnapped or mugged!?

COLA: Cost-of-living adjustment

The September consumer price index (CPI) was not available at press time.

- The projected accumulation toward the sixth regular COLA under the 2023-2026 National Agreement was $146 in September following the release of the August 2025 CPI. The sixth COLA will be based on the increase in the CPI-W between the base index month and January 2026, less any previously calculated COLAs, and will be payable the second full pay period following the release of the January 2026 index.
- The 2026 projected COLAs for the Civil Service Retirement System

(CSRS) is 2.8 percent, and for the Federal Employees Retirement System (FERS), 2.0 percent, following the release of the August CPI. The 2026 COLAs will be finalized with the publication of the September 2025 CPI in October 2025.

- The 2026 projected COLA under the Federal Employees' Compensation Act (FECA) is 2.7 percent following the release of the January CPI. This COLA will be based on the change in the CPI between December 2024 and December 2025.

It turns out that California has now passed a law that mandates identification for ICE agents. These new laws state that federal officers:

- Display identification, such as their agency name and a name or badge number, when performing enforcement duties in California.
- Are banned from wearing masks or other facial coverings that hide their identity during public operations. This was passed in part as a response to reports of masked agents making arrests during immigration raids, which created fear and made it difficult to distinguish real agents from criminals impersonating law enforcement.
- Must reveal their identity and credentials when there is probable cause or reasonable suspicion that they are impersonating a government employee.

Similar laws need to be passed in all 50 states!

Our brother, Carmon G. Haynes Jr., passed away on Oct. 1 after a long battle with cancer. Brother Haynes entered on duty in 2000 with the United States Postal Service and dedicated himself to representing the members of Branch 536 for the National Association of Letter Carriers in 2014. He served as branch president from 2015 to 2025.

During his tenure, Brother Haynes secured dozens of precedent-setting decisions for his branch and represented his members with steadfast solidarity and advocacy. His bulldog ferocity will be remembered fondly, and Branch 536 is dedicated to carrying on his legacy of keeping up the good fight.

Madison Vassari, Branch 536

Just returned from the 123rd Missouri State Association convention at the Lake of the Ozarks. It's always a pleasure to reconnect with old friends that you've come to know through the years and to see the future leaders of this great union just coming into their own.

The Friday dinner afforded an opportunity to hoist a few and swap stories. It's also a time to realize how many souls you've known through the years who are no longer with us. That's the sad reality.

But it's also encouraging to see so many new faces stepping up to take the reins and lead this union forward. The training sessions were informative, and the interaction between the trainers and the delegates reminded me of my early days as a novice steward attending my first conventions. That was a long time ago, but I cherish all the fond memories of those interactions with my mentors.

It's always a pleasure to meet my old friends like NALC Director of Safety and Health Manny Peralta Jr., a man I've admired for years. Manny brings a wealth of knowledge and history of the union to share that hopefully broadens the understanding of our young members of the challenges this union and its members have faced through the years.

The divisiveness going on in this country at the present time is nothing new. The threats of privatization of the Postal Service (never to be taken lightly) are nonetheless another challenge to be faced. The U.S. Postal Service is still, and has been for decades, the most trusted federal agency of the United States government.

As we pass the baton to this new generation of delegates, we ask them to remain vigilant. To understand where we came from and always protect the rights of our membership.

Tom Schulte, Branch 343

St. Paul, Minnesota

Early October saw 13 of our members attend the Minnesota state convention in Cohasset as delegates. Among the fun and fellowship, there was a lot of training and speakers, including our national president, Mr. Renfro, who updated the gathered delegates on some of the plans for the upcoming contract negotiations. Elections for state positions were also held; congratulations to all those elected. One of the many highlights of the week was the live MDA auction, including a pumpkin that raised over $2,000 for MDA alone. Thank you to our excellent state association for another successful convention.

A little closer to home, October saw a number of events at the branch hall. Aside from the usual meetings, we also had an MDA fundraiser event on Oct. 26 and a retirement seminar on Oct. 28. I can't think of a better pair of events to really show how much the union does outside of the workroom floor. The MDA fundraiser is in its second year and features a chili cookoff and costumes and fun for the kids. The retirement seminar is helping both those near retirement and those who are just starting to learn how to have all your paperwork organized for when the day finally comes that you can say sayonara to the workroom floor. Those are just two of the many things the union can help with aside from trying to keep the boss off your back.

Knowledge and coming together to help those in need are the cornerstones of any good union. Solidarity forever!

Kaylee Valerius, Branch 28

Seattle, Washington

When I first started, I kept wondering what I was doing wrong. My first manager, Gordon, called me into the backroom and told me, "You have to work smarter, not harder." WTF does that even mean? Evidently aphorisms abound when you don't have to put boots on the ground. I got to the union hall, and the first thing I discovered was, "Hey! You're not alone!"

The second thing I discovered was, "It's not you, it's them!" "But, but, but..." I probably sounded like one of those old, trolling motors trying to get started. But, the numbers? They're bogus. But the street times? They're bogus. But the threatened Letters of Warning? Well, until it's something, it's nothing! And if one of those threatened, boogeyman mirages finally materializes, take it to your shop steward and he will grieve it. Learn to relax. You can listen to threats, but you don't have to react.

What an epiphany for me, and I would hope the same for you. You're not on an island. You're not a sole survivor. Talk about an eye-opener. I soon got my sea legs and was no longer knocked off balance by all the threats. I tried my hand at shop stewarding, and as an alternate I began attending the shop steward meetings. Wow! There was a whole brood of guys and girls who knew what to do.

Don't let management hand you a load of crap. It's not yours. Give it back! Hanging with that crew made me downright uppity. And the last thing management wants to see on the workroom floor is an uppity, in-your-face worker. Don't accept anyone else's answer about you and your work ethic, as those things are hard to unlearn. Long story short, don't confuse your "what" with your "who"—be you!

Don Nokes, Branch 79

Southeast Pennsylvania Mgd.

Thank you! In this month of Thanksgiving, we have many things going our way. But typically, we focus on the negative or challenges we face. But before I tell you how good we are doing (in context), I must still warn you of the ills of postal management.

The postal management structure is rooted in nepotism and straight-up a$$ kissing. We all know that. There are some good ones, but most of their complement has changed over as well. Remember that guy who had three accidents in one month but was the nephew of a supervisor? He probably is a postmaster now. Remember the lady who always needed help on her route and still brought back mail all the time? She probably is a postmaster now. Oh, let's not forget the son of the postmaster who only carried mail for four months and becomes a 204-B right away. He/she becomes an ass right from the start.

The moral of the story is that they are reverting to the only thing they know. When the going gets tough, manage better? Hell to the naw! The problem is our new members are not used to how things used to be. Their skin is not toughened. We want to make the rules instead of following the rules. So, unless you have a mother/father postmaster, you might want to figure out the old-school mantra, "If you do things their way you will make more money and never get in trouble."

Our membership has turned over drastically. Over 60 percent of our brethren are 10 years and under. Everyone is adjusting. But carriers always adjust. It's just something in us that makes us special.

They are now starting inspections. We should be thankful they didn't do them the last two years.

It's October—hooray! The heat has been hanging on for way too long. Looking forward to cooler temps and leaves crunching underfoot. I'm sure most of us have carried mail amongst the trick-or-treaters at one time or another. "Would you like some candy, mailman?" No, what I'd really like is to be home with my kids trick-or-treating, or at least passing out candy.

On a sad note, we've lost two retirees in the last two weeks. Rick Peters was 73 and Robin Hensley was 63. I remember one time when Rick Peters had about 10 tubs of flats backed up on Route 360 (must have been a holiday or something), and he had them stacked like a staircase. He made it a point to tell everyone who walked by that it was either a stairway to heaven or a highway to hell. Robin was only five years older than me, but he had health issues his entire career.

Tevye, from "Fiddler on the Roof," said it best when he sang, "Sunrise, sunset / Swiftly fly the years / One season following another / Laden with happiness and tears." I started at No. 118 of 120 on the seniority list and I am now No. 4. Where did the years go? We are but caretakers of these routes, meeting the needs of our customers day in, day out. Go above and beyond every day. Without our customers, there is no job. Don't cram a parcel into a mailbox because it just barely fits. Take it to the house.

Lastly, take the earbuds out. Listen to nature. Though the weather is not always pleasant, not everyone gets to work outdoors. As Triumph sang, "Don't get discouraged, don't be afraid / We can make it through another day."

The active carriers in my branch rock. In our little town of 26,000 residents, letter carriers have already delivered 526 mail ballots by Oct 9. Safely and securely, I might add! Your service is truly appreciated, especially by me since one of those ballots was mine.

I've been voting by mail longer than I can remember. The advantages? No need to worry about getting off work in time to make it to the polls. Voting at the kitchen table on my own schedule enabled me to do plenty of research on candidates and referenda and to share it all with my daughter. Doing this taught her that voting is for everyone and isn't scary or overwhelming if you take the time to do it right. And, of course, it is a great revenue source as well as a source of pride for the USPS and letter carriers.

During my time as an active carrier in Colorado, the state transitioned from an excuse-needed absentee ballot state to a full mail-in ballot state. At that time, I served as an officer for the Colorado AFL-CIO and spent time attending meetings and lobbying on the subject. Boy, did I learn a lot about security, verification, voter lists and more.

Each state has its own regulations regarding the processing of ballots. A quick google search will find you the rules for verifying the voters, addresses, legitimacy and more.

Did you know that you can go online and verify that your ballot was received by your local registrar's office? In Virginia it is on the state's department of elections website at vote.elections.virginia.gov/voterinformation/lookup/status.

Voting by mail works. Educate yourself on how the process works so that you can talk confidently about it to anyone who asks you!

No matter how you choose to do it...vote!

At our October branch meeting, we held nominations for all officers, convention delegates, and delegates to both the Northwest Ohio AFL-CIO and Toledo Port Council for the 2026-2028 term. All officers and delegates nominated were elected by acclamation, thus eliminating the need or expense of an election.

As I covered in two previous articles, Branch 100 hosted the Ohio State Association convention in August. I have chaired several state conventions, and I know the time and effort needed to make it happen. The branch could not be prouder of the effort this year's chairman, Brent Harbaugh, and the attending branch delegates put into making the convention such a success. I've been to many conventions, and I have to say, the 2025 Toledo state convention was the best I've ever been to. Thanks to everyone involved!

We're headed for another record year for grievances. One of the facets of the grievance procedure that baffles me is management's intransigence to settle most cases. We have repeatedly offered to settle numerous grievances with no escalation, even though they have repeated the violation many times and they refuse. The grievance is settled at a higher level for significantly more than our offer. How is that good business sense!?

Coming up on the schedule, we will be sending a group to the Committee of Presidents meeting in early November. Shortly thereafter, the branch will be having our annual retiree luncheon. Before you know it, it will be time for our holiday party. Holiday decorations are already in the stores.

I truly enjoy being the president of Branch 2902. Even though it's challenging being a local branch president due to the vigorous responsibilities, I proudly volunteered to serve. An important responsibility of the president's duty is presenting membership pins to individuals at branch general meetings. I presented many honorable pins to the membership, but there were two noteworthy recipients. Once in a while, these special individuals volunteered to assist in educating the membership about the importance of unionism. They truly understand that the success of the branch relies on the strength of the membership and the boots that we have on the ground to represent.

These individuals led by example as branch leaders for many years. They encourage shop stewards to continue protecting the rights of letter carriers through enforcement of the National Agreement. Their actions exemplified the requirements of courage, study and intelligence. They're well respected amongst the members and have shown a deep desire to fight like hell when called upon. Serving as a union representative can be very demanding at times. It requires patience, tenacity and integrity, which are attributes that they possess, and are pivotal to the success of our branch. Furthermore, I was extremely proud and honored to be the president to present these volunteers their membership pins.

Congratulations to President Emeritus Frank Salazar and Ray Hill on their 40 years of membership in the NALC, and thank you for being devoted members who served as branch leaders of Tri-Valley Branch 2902.

Branch 2902 members who want their service pin(s) and/or retirement watch presented to them at a branch meeting, please contact Branch Recording Secretary Diane Dozal, and if you are retired, contact Director of Retirees Bev Suchich to schedule a general meeting or luncheon that you can attend. Happy Thanksgiving.

James C. Perryman Jr., Branch 2902

Westchester Merged, New York

Branch 693 is located in New York and runs from southern to northern Westchester County. It takes seven hours to drive to Buffalo. That is how far our district now encompasses. When this was implemented, I said it was going to be a problem for our branch. We are now orphans and treated like garbage.

Recently a team of route inspectors from Buffalo, Syracuse, Utica and other northern areas came down and cut over 20 percent of our biggest office, White Plains. We are awaiting an arbitration date, as we grieved the entire inspections and lack of reviews.

Do not trust these people, as they have been given marching orders, and that is to eliminate jobs. Scott Javis and Eric Posner, the leaders of the team, came in and dismantled our office, and then hightailed their way back to Niagara Falls. It is a disgrace that we let them redistrict us and create a logistic nightmare. Correspondence with management headquarters is nonexistent.

When a retired letter carrier dies...

- Notify the Office of Personnel Management (OPM). This should be done as soon as possible through its website, by email, by phone or by mail. To report the death of a deceased annuitant to OPM, do one of the following:
 - Visit servicesonline.opm.gov and click on "Report an Annuitant Death." This will take you to an online form to complete and submit.
 - Send an email to retire@opm.gov and include the following information pertaining to the annuitant and survivor(s): Retired letter carrier's full name, CSA number, date of birth, Social Security number, survivor's full name, relationship to the deceased, Social Security number, date of birth, address and phone number.
 - Call OPM at 888-767-6738.*
 - Write to OPM at Office of Personnel Management, P.O. Box 45, Boyers, PA 16017. Provide the information on the deceased and survivor(s) as above.
- *Calling OPM can sometimes take several attempts due to high call volumes. Callers may be on hold for 20 minutes or longer. The NALC Retirement Department staff is familiar with OPM and is well-versed in explaining OPM's processes. Upon request, the NALC Retirement Department will report the death of a retired member to OPM and answer any questions. To contact the NALC Retirement Department, call toll-free at 800-424-5186 on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday from 10 a.m.-12 p.m. and 2 p.m.-4 p.m. Eastern Standard Time. The NALC Retirement Department also can be reached Monday-Friday from 9 a.m.-4:30 p.m. at 202-393-4695. Long distance charges may apply.
- Once the death of an annuitant has been reported to OPM, the OPM will stop payment of the monthly annuity and mail the applicable claim forms to the survivor. In most cases, two forms will be included in the packet:
 - application for death benefits under the retirement system (death benefits include survivor benefits and/or any unpaid annuity balance) and
 - application for Federal Employees' Group Life Insurance (FEGLI)
 - The packet also includes pre-addressed return envelopes, color-coded pink and blue, to facilitate rapid distribution and processing within OPM.
- Notify the bank where annuity payments are deposited, as well as any other of the retiree's financial institutions. Any annuity payments deposited after the date of death will be reclaimed by OPM. Return any uncashed annuity checks to the address on the accompanying Treasury Department envelope.
- Obtain enough death certificates for your needs from the mortuary.
- Notify the retired letter carrier's NALC branch.
- If the retiree was a veteran, notify Veterans' Affairs at 800-827-1000.
- Call the Social Security Administration at 800-772-1213.
- Notify insurance companies (life, health, home, automobile, etc.).
- If the retiree had a policy with NALC's Mutual Benefit Association, call 202-638-4318 between 8 a.m.-3:30 p.m. EST, or write to MBA, 100 Indiana Ave. NW, Suite 510, Washington, DC 20001-2144.
- If the retiree had health insurance through the NALC Health Benefit Plan or any other FEHB plan, the OPM will inform the health plan. When a spouse is entitled to survivor benefits, he or she will receive continuous health insurance coverage as long as they were covered under their spouse's FEHB plan at the time of death. The health plan will automatically change to self-only and be switched to the surviving spouse's name.
- If the retiree participated in the Thrift Savings Plan, contact the TSP at 877-968-3778.

If the spouse of a retired letter carrier dies, call the NALC Retirement Department for instructions on how to restore annuity to full amount, switch health coverage from family to self (unless you have dependent children) and change beneficiaries.

How to place a Mutual Exchange ad

The cost of Mutual Exchange ads is $15 for up to 30 words and $25 for 31-50 words per month. Ads must be received by the 5th of the month preceding the month in which the ad will appear (e.g., November's deadline is for the December publication). Mail ad with check (payable to NALC) to: Mutual Exchange Ads, Postal Record, 100 Indiana Ave. NW, Washington, DC 20001-2144.

Ads are published for NALC members only. A branch officer or steward must endorse the ad to certify membership. Include your name, address and branch number. Begin each ad with your state abbreviation, city and seniority date.

Specific route information or mention of three-way transfers will not be published, nor any wording that offers cash or property to facilitate an exchange. Mutual exchanges must be approved by both postmasters involved. Seniority of carriers involved shall be governed by Article 41, Sec. 2E of the National Agreement. Carriers may not exchange assignments, since vacated positions must be posted for bids in accordance with local and national agreements.
